Thieu Says No To Imposed Peace Pact

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu declared tonight no one has the right to impose a peace settlement on South Vietnam, but added that a cease-fire may be declared soon.

Thieu said his country will accept the cease-fire only if it covers all Indochina under international supervision. He rejected the idea of a tripartite or coalition government.

"If a cease-fire occurs before or after the U.S. elections, we will stand pat on our firm position," Thieu said.

By declaring his opposition to an imposed peace agreement, Thieu indicated sharp disagreement in discussions with the United States on an Indochina settlement.

Thieu spoke out after five days of talks with Henry A. Kissinger, who is now back in Washington.

Kissinger and the U.S. Embassy had said the talks "made progress."

"If a cease-fire occurs, we will always respect it, but the Communists will not," Thieu said. "We respect peace, a cease-fire."

He coupled this with an appeal to all political and religious groups to participate with the Saigon government in case a cease-fire should occur.

His speech was essentially a reiteration of South Vietnam's long-standing position on an Indochina peace settlement. Thieu said he would not be forced into an agreement he did not want.

"No one has the right to sign any agreement, any cease-fire pact or peace pact for the South Vietnamese. Only the South Vietnamese can do it for themselves," he said.

The remark appeared aimed at the United States but Thieu said his discussions with Kissinger had been "very useful and clear discussions."

Natural Gas Supply Cut Back

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Floyd W. Lewis, president of the Middle South Utilities System, said Monday the system could not generate as much electricity as it feels it should because its supply of natural gas has been curtailed.

Additional Funds Needed For Mrs. Glenda Sullivan

An appeal was made today by members of the Sikeston Community Emergency Fund for additional money to help Mrs. Glenda Sullivan of Sikeston who is awaiting a kidney transplant.

The committee, composed of Mrs. Jolene Walker, Mrs. Alta Gunn, Mrs. Ann Elliott, Rev. T. A. McDonough, Clem Beal and Ray Sellers, met today to discuss ways of raising more money.

Mrs. Sullivan received her first kidney treatment on an artificial kidney machine June 28 and since August has been receiving two treatments weekly. Supplies to maintain the machine amount to $500 a month, with each session costing $40. Mrs. Sullivan will remain on the machine until she is able to receive a kidney transplant.

Approximately $4,000 has been raised in the community for Mrs. Sullivan's transplant operation, however, she needs additional money for her living expenses. She has three small children, ages 5,

Seed Showing High Moisture

The Sikeston Cotton Oil Mill is not accepting cotton seed that has been harvested with a high moisture content, according to Clovis Lancaster, assistant manager.

Seed purchased so far has been at a moisture level of about 16 to 20 per cent and the mill will not buy any more cotton seed until it reaches a level of from 12 to 14 per cent.

Farmers in surrounding counties are having a problem harvesting cotton with high moisture content in their seed due to recent rains and will have to wait for the seed to dry before selling.

State Demo Chairwoman Says Voters Turned Off By Nixion

Voters are being turned off by President Richard Nixon and being turned on by Sen. George McGovern.

That's the opinion of Mrs. Lynn Foster of St. Louis. Mrs. Foster is vice chairwoman of Missourians for McGovern- Shriver and associated state coordinator of the McGovern campaign.

She charged that Republicans have created a complete unbelief in government. "They've managed to make the government process distrusted and made it difficult for people to believe in candidates," she said.

Asked if voters distrusted Democratic candidates, she said no.

Democrats have always been concerned for government by and for the people," she said. "Republicans have always been for the elite."

Mrs. Foster said the issues in this campaign revolve around belief in government, honesty, integrity and trust.

The campaign is very similar to Franklin D. Roosevelt's campaign, she said. The Republicans tried to scare the voters by painting FDR as a radical who would ruin the country. Instead, she said, he brought jobs, prosperity and social security.

Lashing out at alleged scandals in the Nixon administration, she said the Nixon administration has been filled with "lies, deceit and scandal." McGovern, on the other hand, "has guts, decency and integrity," she said.

But will McGovern win? "I don't think there's any question of that," she said.

MRS. LYNN FOSTER of St. Louis, vice chairwoman of Missourians for McGovern- Shriver and associate state coordinator for the McGovern campaign, put up a campaign sign Monday at Scott County Democratic Headquarters in Kingsway Plaza Mall.

USO Emphasizes Its Middle Name--Service

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth in a series of articles about the 11 agencies benefiting from the United Fund Campaign. Today's article deals with the United Service Organization (USO).

By RON PORTER

Millions of servicemen have spent hours of their free time in facilities provided by the United Service Organization (USO). Thirty million visited USO clubs in 1971 alone, and in the first three months of this year, over three million servicemen and their dependants used USO facilities.

Sikeston residents can contribute to the USO through the United Fund. The Sikeston UF has allotted $500 of its $46,347 goal to USO and its work.

Perhaps the best known facility is the USO club where servicemen can relax, watch television, listen to records or radio, write letters of pick up free tickets to sports events, movies or theatres.

But the clubs are not the only activity of the organization. In 1972, USO found jobs for about 3,000 veterans, active servicemen and their dependants, through job finding programs. All jobs for active servicemen were part- time jobs designed to suppliment their military income.

Drug abuse programs are presented at USO clubs, and about 200 servicemen were referred for drug abuse treatment through March of this year.

The USO provides "Rap House" programs where servicemen may visit and obtain advice and assistance from fellow servicemen, medical specialists and community leaders.

Nearly 1,200 individual instruction sessions were held in USO facilities around the world for servicemen and their wives. These included such topics as photography classes, dressmaking classes and American homemaking classes for foreign wives.

Free telephone calls to families and friends were provided for over 2,000 servicemen during the first three months of 1972. During the same period, 2,200 free buffets, luncheons and dinners were provided.

In the first three months of the year, 42 USO shows toured overseas bases with a total audience estimated at 1,905,000. Nearly 100,000 free tickets for motion pictures, stage presentations, sports events and other entertainment were distributed to servicemen in the United States.

But the USO doesn't always help just those in the military service. The USO helps servicemen serve the local community through Big Brother programs, Golden Age parties for the elderly, environmental programs and some inner city projects.

In Europe, USO operations increased about 30 per cent during 1971 over the previous year. A new club was opened in Frankfurt, West Germany. Others are scheduled to open in Spain and Iceland.

In the Pacific, USO operations were increased to six, while in Vietnam the number still operating dropped to 12. However activities increased in Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Guam, Okinawa and Taiwan.

Water Plant Bids Opened

DEXTER — The City Council held a special meeting Monday night to open bids on a new water plant to be built near a Hickory House Restaurant northwest of Dexter.

Low bidder for construction of the new water plant was L and T Construction Co. of Grand Rivers, Ky., with a bid of $270,600.

The council reported the bid is higher than the amount of money available and negotiations with the construction company will be undertaken at a later date.

The board and attorney for a new water supply district to be built north and west of Dexter also met with the council to discuss plans for the new district.

Mayor Willis Conners appointed a committee to study the new district and make recommendations to the board at the next council meeting on Nov. 6.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If a man sits in thought at his home as long as five minutes, his women folks begin to wonder what devilment he is up to now.

TOO MUCH "TOO"

Today is the day that follows Veterans Day, but it has an identity all its own. Anthony Enterprises of Chicago has dedicated the day to a Crusade Against Too, the object of which is to cry out against "too much or too little of anything in our personal lives." What better time for such an observance than the latter stage of an election campaign, when the universal complaint is that politicians promise too much and deliver too little?

"Too," in its secondary meaning of "to such a degree as to be regrettable," is a word that is used too much, as is its cousin "very." Both words sap the vitality from the adjectives or adverbs to which they are joined. The same objection applies to such superlatives as "greatest," "best," "fastest," and "most." Second best is no longer considered good enough. New York's Empire State Building, the world's tallest skyscraper for more than three decades, soon will drop to third in the height sweepstakes. Instead of accepting the demotion gracefully, the structure's owners are thinking about adding 11 stories to restore the Empire State to first place. And they are doing so at a time when Manhattan has too much vacant office space and people in many cities are complaining that buildings already are too high.

Yes, "too" is a worthy target for a crusade. Let moderation rule! Certainly, presidential candidates who stray too far from the golden political mean do so at their peril. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican nominee, alienated many when he said in his acceptance speech that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice" and "moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." The Sixties were a decade of too much of many things, and now, perhaps, people are ready to embrace blandness.

Under this administration, favoritism to big business and special interest has dominated the Washington scene. The International Telephone and Telegraph schedule, the Water Gate bugging, the Wheat Export Deal, the raising of millions in unreported campaign funds have besmirched the administration and have shaken the faith of the people in the integrity of their government. By absorbing power within the White House the President has been unable to rule in secret; power is held by men who, by claiming executive privilege, can avoid questioning by Congress.

Over and above all this, there is a moral issue that must dominate the election. The American people are called to answer the question whether they believe in official government policy of mercilessly bombing a little Asian nation and its people into oblivion, for no good reason, is an honorable course for the greatest Military power the earth has seen. We think it is dishonorable, immoral and self defeating, and the antithesis of what every American ought to stand for.

NO MORE DISSENT?

In his surprise appearance before a gathering of relatives of prisoners of war, President Nixon provided the nation with a revealing and distrubing insight into his concept of the function of the press. The leaders of the media, Mr. Nixon declared, "are expected to stand by the President of the United States when he makes a terribly difficult and potentially unpopular decision."

Because a decision is difficult, he is saying, the press should not quarrel with it. Loyalty. Obedience. Support. Is that why the First Amendment was enacted? We think not. The duty of the press is not to the President or the Government, but to the people. The duty of the press is to report events, and to examine the policies and conduct of government, supporting them when it believes they are proper and disagreeing with them when it believes they are wrong. If, as the President claims, the press is required to stand by his decisions because they are difficult and because they are made by the President, does it not follow that dissent is treason?

BUT HOW'S HE TURN THE PAGES?

We came across a news report about a 17- year- old boy in San Diego which proves that none of us are equally endowed with abilities, regardless of those who believe educational enrichment and revisions in society's structure will make us all equal and one big happy family.

Greg Peseley is determined not to be a genius, and the reason he's so determined is that he has been told he might be someday.

For Greg, among other things, can read faster than any other known human being -- up to 203,000 words per minute.

He has averaged between 4,500 to 27,000 words per minute on the toughest battery of tests around.

"He has a unique ability to store information that others don't have," said Wilson Schurr, assistant professor in charge of the University of San Diego Educational Development Center. "He's absolutely fantastic. I believe it must be something in his genetic makeup that enables him to do this."

Schurr tested Greg after a summer school instructor recognized his unique ability.

"To start out with I handed him a book and told him to read for 10 minutes. I figured if he really was terrific he might get a third of the way through the book."

"In all my years the best anyone has ever done on that test is 3,000 words per minute. And that happened only once," Schurr said.

"Greg's lowest score on some very difficult reading matter was 4,500 words per minute."

But he peaked at 27,000 words per minute -- nine times faster than the previous high, according to Schurr.

"Then I had my secretary bring in a book she had just read, called 'The Other.' Greg took a few minutes to read it, and then he and my secretary discussed it."

"I'm afraid I might miss some things if I read a Hemingway novel at 27,000 words a minute," Greg said. "I'd get the story line, but I'd miss a lot of what he wanted to say."

The average reading speed in the United States is 250 words per minute with 45 per cent comprehension, compared to Greg's 27,000 words per minute with 85 per cent comprehension.

Greg enjoys chess, he's vice president of his senior class and an associate editor of the school annual.

And oh, yes. He doesn't want to be a genius.

"I'm thinking of becoming a photographer," he said.

So what else can we add -- except, how about that!

A REDICULOUS SITUATION

An official of a large timber company has explained why many industries are approaching a dead end in planning future expansion. He says, "We are in a ridiculous situation ... the public is demanding environmental improvement; business is, by and large, willing to provide it ... but, governmental competition for the environmental leadership role is frustrating both public and industry, and seriously delaying the pollution control effort."

A measure was before the last Congress that, if passed, would put the states largely out of thy picture so far as pollution control is concerned. The federal government would be in completed control. Many believe the states are in a more effective position to undertake real environmental improvement in line with existing area and community needs. But that is beside the point. Whether the rules for environmental quality control are to originate at the state or federal level, it is a fact that, "Until industry has these standards to work from, and until it feels that they will remain relatively unchanged for a reasonable time period, it will remain almost paralyzed in meeting environmental demand ... it cennot justify the cost to shareholders of major new installations, or the development of major new technologies, if it has no assurance that they will meet standards at the time of installation ... in any industry with potential environmental impact, it becomes virtually impossible to justify the risk of building a major new factory to replace an environmentally obsolete one, to provide new jobs, to lower costs, to increase productivity or to increase local tax bases. Such installations generally will have to be deferred until the environmental rule book is in hand."

The public remains too often unaware of the facts of industrial production as related to environmental protection. Instead of getting facts, people are being subjected to an overdose of emotional, crusading and political oratory while job creating industries mark time.

WHO ARE "THEY"?

Whenever anything goes wrong that nebulous entity called "they" is likely to get the blame. "They" befoul the environment. "They" build faulty appliances. Right at the moment utility company managements are a prominent "they" group.

Today the typical executive of a power company looks out his office window at an awesome expanse of city. He sees lights stretching to the horizon. He visualizes the homes, factories, hospitals -- the millions of service requirements which his company must meet without fail. He also sees the dilemma posed by those who mistakenly blame energy production rather than people for the rising tide of pollution. He must show them somehow that abundant energy is the basis of a wholesome environment. He must also convince public regulators of the need for rates and earnings that will enable the company to meet rising costs of new pollution control technology -- and rising demands for power that will be coming from the remaining dark spots out there on the horizon -- outside his office window.

There are a lot of "theys" like this typical executive in the utility business. They are all faced with the same problems that are the outgrowth of an expanding population and crowded cities. And, of course, "they" are among the doers and achievers who get the blame whenever anything goes wrong. In an age of high expectations, it is well to pause occasionally to realize that perfection is a relative term -- always sought but never attained.

SMALLER CHAINS LIFT MUCH HEAVIER LOADS

Lighter smaller chain, with from 25 per cent to 100 per cent greater strength, size for size, then previous types is industry's answer to the need for heavier crane or boom loads, the National Association of Chain Manufacturers points out.

Loads to be lifted are reaching unprecedented weights as designers call for ever-larger generators, boilers, transformers, turbines and other equipment that chain and hoisting equipment has to handle.

The smaller size, lighter weight and greater strength of the alloy chains now available means that corresponding reductions in size and weight can be made in the equipment with which these chains are used, as well as in storage space and in-plant handling equipment.

Many a patriotic heart beat stronger and prouder to see that the families of U.S. prisoners of war and missing in action are standing courageously against the communist campaign to use the prisoner issue against our country, trying to divide us and weaken resistance to communist aggression and subversion.

It would be so easy for the families of the prisoners and the missing to fall for the communist campaign. The Red scheme should be working, since it is as adroit and clever as communist schemes usually are. But it is failing miserably at this point.

The Red scheme has impressed the "liberal," soft-on- communism opinion-molders but the chief targets, the families of the men in question, are not buying. Here's how the scheme was supposed to work: the Reds release a few prisoners with great propaganda world wide, having them brought out of Hanoi by so- called U.S. anti-war activists. Then the families of remaining prisoners and missing men are supposed to storm the White House and the halls of Congress demanding immediate surrender to communists so as to recover the U.S. men in POW camps.

The families, organized in the League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, convened in Washington and booed the pleas for surrender to Red blackmail and supported a "hawkish" stand on getting the captives back.

This is the spirit of Valley Forge and of the Alamo, the never- give- in- to- tyranny courage which made possible the creation of this Republic USA out of a hostile wilderness. It is splendid to see that that brave spirit still lives, despite communist blackmail, among the families who have the most to lose by standing firm, at least in the short term. They are wise families, wise and strong in the spirit which can defeat tyranny in the only way possible: by being braver than the enemy. HLH

Ballots For Bullets? Nation's Tiny Black Panther Sect Reaching For Power in Multi-Billion- Dollar Poverty Projects

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. – After a series of cross-country sorties along campaign trails, I find there is one strange election drive which is little heeded by uptight cities back East. Cities which would whirl convulsively at the news have not been told that the chairman, Bobby Seale, co-founder of the Black Panther Party (BPP), is running for major of Oakland, California's baseball citadel, apparently no more short of cash than he is of chestiness.

This is strange. For the Black Panthers, as a party and national network, now is virtually nonexistent. Where once it had several thousand members, the BPP now is down to some 375 hard-core members, about 175 quasi-members or "close associates" used in community action.

Where once its weekly newspaper, the "Black Panther" circulated 180,000, it now has a press run of some 50,000 printed in Chicago and distributed mostly in the San Francisco Bay area and in New York, and to a lesser extent in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Where once there were 40 to 50 robust chapters in such "outlying cities" as Houston and Charlotte, N. C., there now are 26 tightly controlled units. There is no recruiting. There is only what the insiders call the "burning down" of the faithful. The Panther leadership apparently isn't interested in size but in Political seizure.

It has made much of "putting down the gun." But its literature still toys with headlines such as "Shoot to Kill." Yet it has managed to work its way into the social and political woodwork. It has a series of survival programs which have intrigued the elders of the black community, and even the most moderate such as Roy Wilkins welcome the Panthers back as prodigals.

Rarely has there been such a whirlabout. There are visits and seminars and cocktail parties and receptions and book nights and political action. Back in March the Panthers registered 11,000 voters in a few days. There even has been a talk by Supreme Commander and Defense Minister Huey Newton before a National Assn. of Black Manufactures.

The inner-city action appears endless and unmarked on the "inter-communal" front. There are in this Black Panther Survival Program: Free Breakfast Program; Free Busing to Prisons Program; Free commissary for Prisoners Program; Legal Aid Educational Program; People's Free Clothing Program; The David Hilliard People's Free Shoe Program; The Angela Davis People's Free Food Program (though the itinerant lady appears to have slipped out of Panther favor), and Liberation Schools.

They have also set up The People's Free Medical Research Health Clinic; People's Free Ambulance Service; The Sickle Cell Anemia Research Foundation; Free Plumbing and Maintenance Program; People's Free Dental Program; People's Free Optometry Program; People's Free Furniture Program, and the People:s Free Linen Program– just to mention a few which have been trumpeted recently.

There even is talk of developing a black capitalism of the Panthers' very own with a mass production schedule of consumer goods.

The re-imaging has been a vivid and almost instant good neighbor. In six years the party and the organization have turned from a self-styled gun-slinging network of feuding and ferocious bands, openly dedicated to slaughtering police, to a seemingly gentle psalm-singing troupe of sidewalk evangelists. From intractable youths dedicated to the bullet to those hailing the ballot, from leather coated neo-Marxists and Maoists to those eager to work with the Establishment.

This conversion puzzles many. Some observers are cynical. They note that the Panthers seek out the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), Community Action Programs, and some Panthers seek lodging in well-paying jobs in the Model Cities Program.

Few outsiders realize how many hundreds of millions are spent by the decentralized Community Action Boards. Or exactly what the Model Cities Program is. Grants are handed out anywhere from half a million to four and five million dollars in annual appropriations, say government officials who should know where the money is going.

And there are housing projects into which are thrown hundreds of thousands of dollars in "seed" money and then millions more for actual construction. Battles have been fought by rival factions in some communities-- violent and destructive -- for control of these funds. Such as in the case of a $20 million New York Side housing plan.

Not only money but power springs from these government program funds which must eventually be spent by the local Community Action Boards in Ghettos across the nation. There's heavy cash on the poverty front--much of it spent by "Boards of Dorectors" which are elected by handfuls of community "residents."

So Federal officials, whose task it is to keep the Panthers under surveillance, say the ballot will pay off far more than the bullet in a score of cities where most of the citizenry and most of the municipal officials just don't want to "get involved" once the money is "trickled" down to the Community Action Programs.

So the nation, especially those interested in seeing what happens to the money for the needy, might well watch the fascinating Oakland election as well as that other race of national significance.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Press speculation that President Nixon is playing politics with a Vietnam cease-fire, say those familiar with the secret negotiations, is untrue and unfair.

No doubt the President would like to be able to boast before the election that he had ended the fighting in Vietnam. But those who have discussed the subject with him say his political instincts warn against a pre- election truce.

For the terms, once they are announced, are bound to displease either the hawks or doves, perhaps both. Politically speaking, the President believes it is better to keep the settlement terms vague until after the election.

But Richard Nixon, though he will present his actions to the public in the best possible political light, puts patriotism ahead of politics. No one who has participated in the Vietnam policy discussions has any doubt about that. They tell us he won't continue the war a day longer than he considers necessary to secure an "honorable peace."

The voters may quarrel with him over his concept of an "honorable peace," say our sources, but not over his motivation. He believes he is close to a settlement that could prevent a communist take- over of South Vietnam. This objective, he feels, is worth a few more weeks of war.

George McGovern, on the other hand, believes the fighting has lost all purpose except to keep the Thieu regime in power. He doesn't consider President Thieu worth another American life. The U.S. devastation of Vietnam, in McGovern's view, is almost immoral.

The voters should judge the opposing views, not question the patriotism of the candidates. For both men are sincere.

Earlier this year, President Nixon made a decision on Vietnam that he thought could hurt him politically. He ordered the mining of North Vietnam's harbors and the bombing of her supply lines, despite apprehension that the decision would be unpopular with the American voters.

He also ignored the assessment of his intelligence services that the bombing and minng could not stop the flow of military supplies into North Vietnam. The assessment has now been confirmed. Five months after the President's action, food, fuel and munitions are still plentiful in North Vietnam.

But the President's main purpose, our sources say, was to shake Hanoi's confidence in her communist big brothers. He was confident that neither Moscow nor Peking would respond to the bombing and mining with anything more than rhetoric. This migh help convince the North Vietnamese, he felt, that they couldn't count on their powerful allies in a crunch and, therefore, should settle the war at the negotiating table.

The President feels his strategy, for all its high political risks, is paying off. Washington and Hanoi are now close to a cease-fire agreement that meets his definition of "honorable." Under the formula that has come out of the Paris truce talks, each side, during the cease- fire, would administer the territory its troops now control. A coalition government would rule Saigon until internationally supervised elections could be held.

This would give the communists a voice they don't now have in Saigon, which President Thieu is fiercely resisting. White House negotiator Henry Kissinger is trying to persuade him this is the best possible settlement.

Kissinger has argued, in effect, that both sides participated in the fighting, therefore both sides should participate in the interim government. Neither side can be expected to wait out in the cold, he contends, and let the other run the government during the cease- fire.

NARCOTICS AND BANKS

Congress will lay bare the financial heart of the world narcotics racket next year by showing that "respectable" bankers finance international heroin dealers.

For years, Congress has skirted the issue, throwing the spotlight, instead, on the Mafia overlords, dope addicts, the narcotics police and others who can be more comfortably put under congressional kleig lights.

The hints of corrupt bankers doing business with the mob have been muted. The bankers rested secure in their counting houses. The dope trade flourished.

Now, Sen. Walter Mondale, D.-Minn., chairman of a Senate Banking subcommittee, is taking on the chore, as he puts it, of exposing "the banking and financial operations that underlie the illegal international traffic in narcotics."

Mondale must first be reelected, but he is a heavy favorite to defeath the Republican rival. Until the election, however, his plans for hearings in the next sesssion must remain conditional. but already his staff is at work on the bank investigation.

They are focusing on prominent banks in Japan, Southeast Asia and Switzerland. These arythe "narcotics banks" whose names are mentioned in whispers in the hushed and paneled boardrooms of the international banking brotherhood.

Mondale has already learned that the banks do not finance the Corsican, Italian, Latin American and ethnic Chinese lords of narcotics directly. The loans are made, instead, to legitimate businessmen. They, in turn, may act as both financial agents and fronts for somewhat seedier clients. And the bank loans may be secured by phony Mafia stock certificates.

As the chain of intermediaries stretches closer to the drug wholesaler, the collateral becomes, in effect, warehouses of heroin, brown morphine or stockpiles of raw opium.

Thus the bankers, who never need soil their manicured fingers by shaking the hands of the dope merchants, indirectly finance them and accept as collateral fields full of opium poppies.

Some of the "narcotics bankers" are only vaguely aware that they are loaning money through fronts to drug wholesalers. Others know they are financing drug addiction, but cannot resist the lure of high-interest short- term loans.

Mondale's task will be to trace the loans from the banks to the drug wholesalers. This will require overcoming the traditional and legal secrecy of he international banks. although his subpoena powers do not extend overseas, he hopes to send investigators to Switzerland, Hong Kong, Japan and possibly even mainland China.

Meanwhile, Mondale's staff is in contact with the Federal Bureau Of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, which for years has tried to tell the world that narcotics, like any other big business. has its bankers and middlemen.

Up to now, few have listened.

Before the white man made the handshake the popular method of greeting in America, members of some Indian tribes said hello by blowing in each other's ears.

The U.S. recordholder for making the most handshakes in one day, according to the National Geographic Society, is still President Theodore Roosevelt, who once palmed the palms of 8,513 people at a White House New Year's reception early in this century.

Who, in your opinion, was the greatest man in history? In an international poll of students made a number of years ago, the winner was a surprise — Louis Pasteur. If you were asked this question today, whom would you choose? I'd say the honor prpbably belongs to some unknown someone fame never touched and history never knew. And, as the old saying suggests, if he was that good, he probably died young.

Quotable notables: "Middle age is that time of life when you are sitting at home on Saturday night and the phone rings, and you hope it isn't for you." — Ring Lardner.

You won't drink to this statistic: One of three suicides is an alcoholic.

A poor investor: The average squirrel is more of an example of successful energy than unerring intelligence. Like the absent-minded professor, it is likely to forget what it has done. It usually doesn't find by spring, even during a hard winter, anywhere near half of the up to 20 bushels of nuts it has hidden in the earth.

It was Washington Irving who observed: "Great minds have purposes while others have wishes. Little minds are tamed and subdued by misfortunes but great minds rise above them"

Harbin Cites Economics Of Sikeston Public Schools

Sikeston public schools are operating on a budget amounting to about $4.5 million this fiscal year, Supt. Sam Harbin told the Rotary Club Monday night at Ramada Inn.

Harbin said the majority of these dollars are spent in the Sikeston trade area. Citing an economic assumption that the dollar turns over seven times before it moves out of a trade area, he compared the school to a $30 million industry, one of the largest in the area.

"Although economics are important, the school's business is people; your children," Harbin stated. "The school's product is a well- educated graduate, not only academic but job preparation as well.

"Our mission is to prepare students to succeed in society, economically as well as socially, and at the same time, we must operate in an efficient, businesslike way to use your tax dollar."

The Rotarians were told that the school system not only contributes importantly in product and dollars to the community it serves, but is a medium- size industry in regard to employment. In addition to the 292 certificated staff members, the system employs 175 people in supportive services.

Harbin discussed the school's role as a customer of private enterprise. The system spends $275,000 per year for food, uses 60,000 to 80,000 gallons of gasoline each year, spends around $60,000 for utilities annually, and thousands of dollars are spent annually in repairs and upkeep of the $17 million worth of buildings in the school district.

He said that, in general, the community is proud of the school system and the exceptionally capable staff of school teachers working for and with the students.

"We, who work for the district realize that the citizens demand good schools; that the business community demands good schools; that industry is particular about the school system of any community when considering locating facilities there."

Aside from the many positive aspects of the school system, Harbin talked about a major detriment of the system; the population problem in grades six through 12. "Middle School, built in 1915 to house 600 students has long been a population problem school.

Even with the acquisition of the Bailey School which has eight good size classrooms, the facility is not adequate to provide a quality program to the students in grades 6-7-8. One thousand seventy students attend the middle school at the present time, causing severe overcrowded conditions to exist in all departments of the school's operation.

Sam Harbin

The high school was built in 1960 for approximately 900 students. Since that time, the enrollment picture has worsened with growing freshman classes and an expanding curriculum. Today, over 1,300 students are enrolled in that unit.

The board of education, with the assistance of a feasibility study committee, has been analyzing this problem since the middle of last school year. After considering a number of alternatives, the board of education elected to place before the community a building proposal for a new junior high school, which would house the eighth grade from middle school and the ninth grade from high school.

The high school's population would be reduced about 400 students and the middle school approximately the same. The junior high school would be built to accommodate 900 students, providing room for growth at the high school for grades 10-12, and at the middle school for grades six and seven.

Each of the three units would have a smaller student population than the present middle or high school, providing easier management and better control.

Harbin stated, "This new school could be a reality without a tax increase since enough school bonds are being retired this year to allow the district to assume additional indebtedness with the same bond payment. The school would cost $1 million to build and furnish, and would be located on a 16.2-acre site already owned by the school district adjacent to the high school campus."

He stated that the school could be in operation by the second semester of the 1973-74 school year, if the community approves the proposal.

At the conclusion of the program, the Rotary Club voted to unanimously support the building program.

How Do YOU Feel About
A New Gasoline Sales Tax?

"While my opponent favors adding a new sales tax to gasoline, I would veto such an effort." That's how Ed Dowd feels about adding a sales tax to gasoline! He also says, " Gas prices are already high enough . . . adding a sales tax would be highly inflationary." If you feel the same way about adding a sales tax to gasoline, then Ed Dowd's your man for Missouri's Governor.

Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.

Doctor Asks For Emphasis Concerning VD Symptoms

Dear Ann Landers: As a gynecologist and a member of the National Commission on V.D. I want to thank you for the good you have done through your column. Your recent advice on how to spot V.D. was excellent. If it is possible, will you please return to the subject and emphasize a few points which are not well known, even by many physicians:

In females, gonorrhea may be present without symptoms. It is a fact that the majority of females who have it harbor the infection for long periods of time. Patients frequently come to me because their boyfriends have told them they acquired the disease from them. Upon examination the women appear perfectly O.K. but I take a smear and the lab results indicate they do indeed have gonorrhea. All women who lead active sex lives should have lab smears. It is quick, simple, painless and inexpensive.

Although our hedonistic society has downgraded the old fashioned birth control control device the boys used to buy furtively in drugstores, it is still the best way to prevent V.D. as well as pregnancy. It might also be a factor in preventing cancer of the cervix.

Gonorrhea is the commonest cause for sterility in both male and female. It also may cause arthritis, skin eruptions, prostate trouble, kidney disease, heart disease and even death.--- Edwin Do Costa, M.D., Chicago

Dear Dr. De Costa: Thank you for providing my readers with what might be life-saving information. I appreciate your interest.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you still give advice or do you just tell people what they want to hear? I read with astonishment the letter from the country lady (pardon, woman) who was irritated by city people who were lost and blew their car horns until someone came out and gave them directions. I was even more astonished when you agreed with her that they were boors and clods. What ever became of the milk of human kindness?

I have lived in the country over 20 years on a little-traveled road. When a stranger stops to ask directions I am happy to help him. It is such a small thing to do, why would anyone resent it?

Please, Ann, don't encourage such lack of concern that we resent doing a small kindness. Does the Bible not say that in encountering strangers some have entertained angels unaware?--- Country Hick And Glad Of It.

Dear Glad: "Strangers" aren't what they used to be, plus the fact that folks who wander on to a farmer's property may well encounter something besides "angels." Read on:

Dear Ann Landers: One thing is for sure. You might be from Iowa, but you are a city girl through and through. Your reply to the farm woman who resented it when city people drove on to their property and honked the horn, for someone to come out and give them road directions was a dead give away.

I'm a farm person and I know that most farmers keep dogs on their place for protection. The dogs are not always visible, but they are on the look-out for strangers. If the farm family doesn't happen to be at home, your so-called "good manners" could result in disaster.--- Country Folk

Dear Folk: Thank you, Country Cousin, for the seasoned counsel. Your letter proves once again that common sense takes precedence over etiquette.

Tour With Candidates

By MARY NOLEN

My first experience on the political campaign trail came Friday when I joined Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, and Rep. Bill D. Burlison, running for his third term as 10th District Democratic Congressman, on a campaign tour of the Bootheel which better acquainted me with the issues facing Missourians.

I also met Dowd campaign aide Meck Buehler, who serves as Dowd's right arm.

The day began with a breakfast in Dowd's honor at Holiday Inn in Cape Girardeau attended by more than 200 supporters, including Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard and Scott County campaign chairman for Dowd.

Rep. Burlison began the speeches by talking of the failures of President Richard M. Nixon's term and emphasized that he should not be given another four years in the White House. He also said that unemployment has risen to six per cent since Nixon took office, and that it was only four per cent when he began.

Burlison also spoke on the publicized Republican bugging of the Democratic headquarters. "When the five were caught in the process of burglarizing the headquarters, two of them were members of the President's White House staff and one was chief security officer for the Committee to Re-elect the President," he said.

On the state level, he spoke of Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher (Kit) Bond's failure to file a state income tax returns. "On the last two cars he bought, he has failed to pay Missouri sales tax on them," Burlison stated.

"When I was a lawyer beginning my practice, although I didn't make enough money to pay Missouri taxes, I still filed a tax return because I knew I was required to by law," he continued.

Burlison then introduced Dowd and gave a rundown on his qualifications.

"I want to make something clear ... I am and have always been against gun control," Dowd began. "I do quite a bit of hunting on my small cattle farm in Franklin county and enjoy this very much," he continued.

He also said that it doesn't matter how many laws are passed, if a criminal wants a gun he will get one even if he has to resort to violence, and that the average person is then left without any protection at all.

Dowd also spoke on how the courts need changing. "If a man commits a crime he should be taken to court within 90 days," Dowd said. Too often the trial is postponed time after time sometimes for almost two years before he is finally brought to trial.

"A strong emphasis on law should be taken against the person who sells drugs. Drug pushers should be tried quickly and given severe sentences," Dowd stated. "A person on heroin needs $80 to $100 a day to feed his habit and, since not many people have this kind of money, he often resorts to crime to help get it," he continued.

"I would like to establish facilities for methadone treatment. Methadone is given to narcotic addicts as a heroin substitute and would only cost the state 25 cents a day," Dowd added.

"Nothing makes a candidate feel any better than to be asked for his autograph," he said. One day after he had finished a speech to a college group, some teen-agers rushed to him asking for his autograph. After signing one young man's paper, he came walking back and said, "Hey, you're not Tom Eagleton."

Dowd then laughed and said, "No, I'm not."

After breakfast, I met Dowd and Burlison at the Cape Girardeau airport. Although I hadn't met any of them previously, Dowd, Burlison and Buehler came over at once, introduced themselves and made me feel welcome.

Althought I had never ridden in an airplane before, with the encouragement of Burlison and Jerry Estes, magistrate of Cape Girardeau County, I seemed to make it okay.

When we arrived in Dexter, we were taken to the Hickory Log Restaurant for an appreciation dinner in honor of Dowd and Burlison.

Burlison, speaking first again, said, "Bond swore under oath when taking a bar exam in 1964 that he was a resident of Atlanta, Ga., and we know of at least one other state where he did the same."

He also spoke on corruption in the Nixon administration and how money had been taken from the farmers in the wheat scandal.

Dowd followed Burlison's comments by stating,

"I have often been criticized for being an independent man, but I am my own man, and I am proud of it."

Dowd then said he is opposed to his opponent's suggestion that a sales tax be levied on gasoline to be used for rapid transit systems in the large cities, and that he was opposed to Bond's endorsement of gasolines tax diversions for construction and operation of rapid transit systems.

"I believe in rapid transit systems, but I believe that the cities should pay for the systems themselves," Dowd stated.

He also said he is committed to no increase in taxes and that his failure to endorse diversion of state gasoline tax funds to rapid transit systems in the cities had cost him the endorsement of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Dowd then discussed how he would like to attract more industry into rural areas so people would not have to travel 150 to 200 miles a day to work, which would help reduce heavy traffic in the cities.

After leaving Dexter, I asked Dowd about his favorite hobby. He laughed and said, "Oh, I'm a horseback riding and tennis man.

As soon as we reached Kennett, we were taken to the Dunklin County Democratic headquarters. Then we attended the Kennett High School homecoming parade and Dowd crowned the queen. Our next stop was at The Daily Dunklin Democrat, where we were met by the publisher, Jack Stapleton Jr.

Next we went to Malden and to a union hall where we were met by women who worked in a factory nearby. Rep. Burlison came back there later that night to attend an appreciation dinner given in his honor by the women.

After a few pictures and handshaking, we reboarded the plane to make our last stop in Poplar Bluff.

Upon our arrival in Poplar Bluff, we attended a meeting being held by a group of union women where Dowd and Burlison then gave brief speeches. We then went to the Democrat headquarters where we were met by a large crowd.

While Dowd and Burlison were talking to reporters and meeting the people, I interviewed Buehler. Before becoming campaign aide for Dowd, he was a teacher for three years. He and his wife, Jean have a 14-month-old son named Jason.

Since it was beginning to get late and we had been campaigning about 11 hours, I asked Buehler how he managed to withstand working such long days.

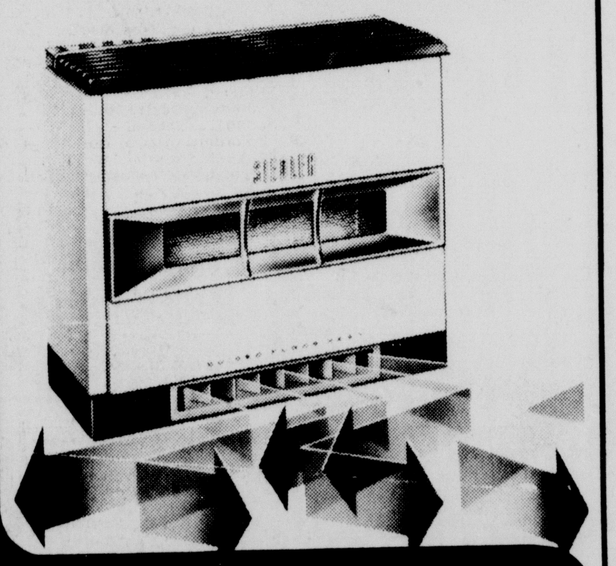

"Oh, I get tired all right, but I enjoy working with Mr. Dowd and I honestly think that we are going to win," he remarked.

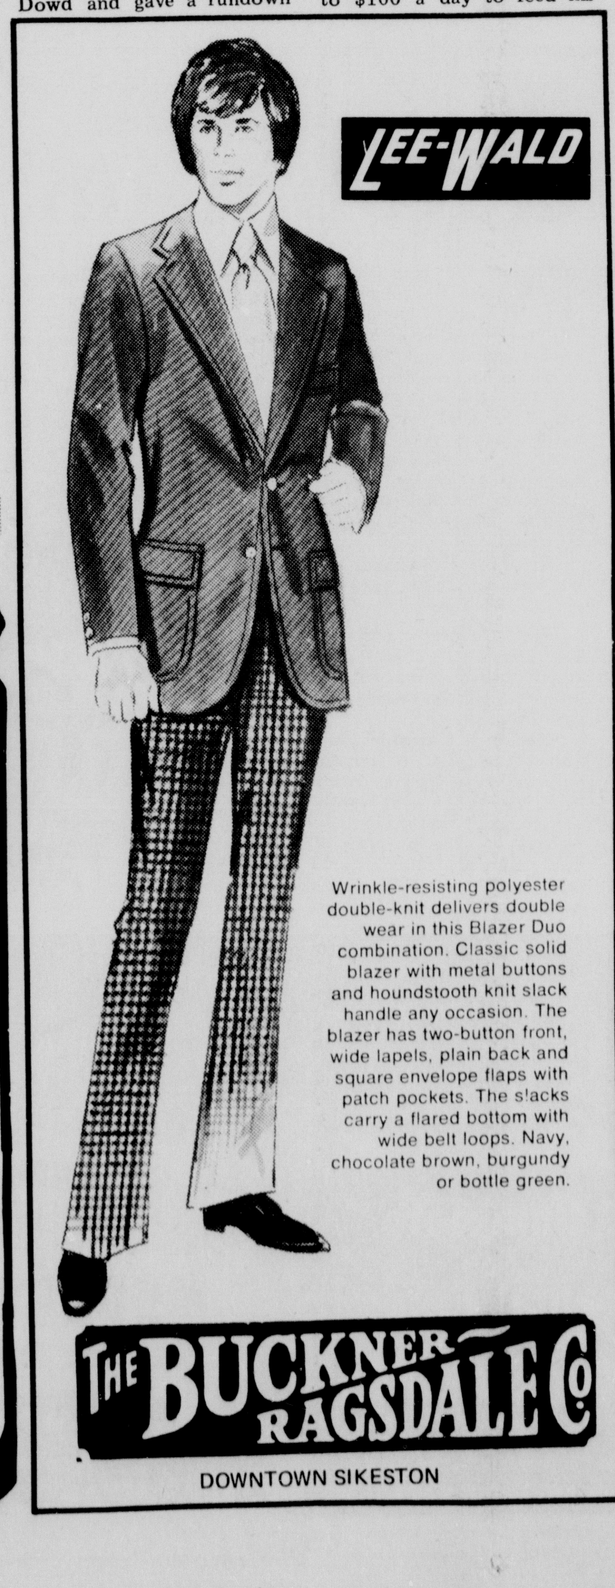

Burlison and I left before Dowd and his campaign crew did because we were scheduled to ride the same plane back to Malden, where he was to speak.

The day had passed so quickly and I had enjoyed myself so much that I really hated to leave. I was really beginning to feel a part of the campaign crew, and it was a day I will not soon forget.

Alabama Battles To Second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alabama, runner-up at the end of the 1971 regular season, moved into second place once again today in The Associated Press college football ratings but well in arrears of front-running Southern California.

The top-ranked Trojans trimmed Washington 34-7 for their seventh consecutive victory and received 44 first-place votes and 986 of a possible 1,000 points—highest score of the season—from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama's come-from-behind 17-10 triumph over Tennessee earned the Crimson Tide two first-place votes and 805 points and moved them up from third place to second. Nebraska's defending two-time national champions blasted Kansas 56-0 for their third straight shutout and continued their climb, rising from fifth to third with two first-place ballots and 718 points.

Ohio State and Michigan remained in the fourth and fifth spots. The Buckeyes trounced ndiana 44-7 and received one first-place vote and 681 points while the Wolverines downed Illinois 31-7 and picked up the remaining No. 1 vote and 629 points.

Louisiana State rose from seventh to sixth with a 10-0 triumph over Kentucky. Colorado upset Oklahoma, last week's runner-up, 20-14 and went from ninth to seventh while dropping the Sooners from second to eighth.

Rounding out the Top Ten were UCLA, up from 11th to ninth after a 49-13 rout of California, and Texas, which climbed from 14th to 10th by trimming Arkansas 35-15.

Notre Dame and Tennessee fell out of the Top Ten, dropping from eighth and 10th, respectively, last week to 13th and 14th. The Fighting Irish bowed to Missouri 30-26 while Tennessee's late collapse against Alabama cost the Vols their spot among the elite.

The Second Ten consisted of Penn State, Auburn, Notre Dame, Tennessee, Iowa State, Arizona State and Florida State, with Arkansas, Southern Methodist and West Virginia all tied for 18th.

Last week's Second Ten was UCLA, Penn State, Stanford, Texas, Auburn, Air Force, Arkansas, Washington, Arizona State and Iowa State. Stanford lost to Oregon 15-13, Air Force was shot down by Navy 21-17 and Washington bowed to Southern Cal.

Shoulder Trouble

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals aid Monday wide receiver Mel Gray will be sidelined 4 to 6 weeks because of a dislocated left shoulder.

Gray was hurt Sunday in his first game of the season during the Cardinals loss to the New York Giants. He had just returned to action after a separated right shoulder which kept him off the bench for six weeks.

Basketball-Tips From The Globe Trotters

The Harlem Globetrotters, who bring their basketball magic to Sikeston High School field House on Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m., have released some "basketball tips" to fulfill thousands of requests from their fans.

GEESE AUSBIE ON SHOOTING

Shooting ability, like other fundamentals of basketball, is something that can be improved through practice. Let's start with your feet, which may sound funny, and end up with your eyes.

In shooting, keep your feet a comfortable distance apart, usually about the width of your shoulders is a good distance. Relax, and bend your knees slightly. The ball should be released off of the fingertips and don't forget to follow through. You should end up with the palm of the shooting hand facing the basket.

Now let's get to the eyes. Aim is very important in shooting. Concentrate on where you want to shoot, whether you intend to use the backboard or shoot for the rim. Generally speaking, angle shots should be banked off the board. Try and aim for the front part of the rim, and shoot a soft shot. Many times the ball will then go in off the rim.

When shooting the jump shot, remember that it is not important to get very far off the ground. It is far more important to be able to get off your shot quickly and accurately. Very few of your top basketball players actually jump that high, it is far more important to shoot quickly.

BOB (SHOWBOAT) HALL ON PASSING

Passing is a very important part of the game. Although the guy that makes the basket usually gets the headlines, if it weren't for someone passing him the ball, the basket couldn't be made. Good passing is important because it insures confidence and good team morale. Always try and keep the ball moving, keep it hot. Try and make your passes snappy and sharp, and try to avoid careless passing.

You will find that there is a pass for every situation. I even have a pass for when I am reaching for a glass of water on the bench! Seriously, the basic passes are the chest pass, the bounce pass and the baseball pass.

The two-hand chest pass is a short pass not exceeding over 15 feet. The hands are held on the side and the ball is released with a snap of the wrists.

The bounce pass is used to pass the ball when someone is closely guarding you. On the Globetrotters we use the bounce pass to get the ball to the pivot man, or we use it against a press. The ball should be snapped down, with the bound coming as close to the man you are passing to as possible.

The baseball pass is probably the hardest of all to complete accurately. It is used to trigger a fast break or to throw the length of the court. The ball is released like a catcher in baseball releases the ball, from behind the ear. This is in effective pass, but it takes a great deal of practice to do it well.

PABLO ROBERTSON'S DRIBBLING EXERCISES

In order to become a good dribbler, you must be ready to practice constantly. In dribbling, this practice can often become very boring. That is why I have devised two special exercises to help you become a better dribbler and have fun at the same time. Don't forget that just because you are working hard, you don't have to forget about having a little fun.

In the first exercise, line up eight to ten chairs in a straight line or row. Leave a few feet between the chairs and bouncing the ball slowly, weave in and out between the chairs. Start slowly and increase your pace as you go until you eventually are going as fast as you can.

In the second exercise, take the chairs and place them in a circle, about eight to ten feet across. Do the same things you did in the first exercise, except you will find it more difficult going in a circle then you did going in a straight line. Again, start out slowly and try and build up your pace until you can go between the chairs without hitting them or without losing control of the ball.

Keep working at dribbling, and try changing hands. After you master your right hand, work on your left. Soon you will be able to not only master change of hands, but also changes in the speed you are dribbling. Above all, don't forget to practice hard, but try and have fun at the same time.

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS bring their basketball show to the Sikeston High School field house, Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m. Among the stars will be these three big men -- Theodis Lee, Jerry Venable and Mel Davis. The Trotters made an appearance in Sikeston three years ago and return this season with the famed Marque Haynes as coach. The Lions Club is sponsor of the event and advance tickets may be purchased at any of the local banks.

Jackie Robinson Dead

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Jackie Robinson, a black infielder who wrote baseball history when he broke the major league's color barrier in 1947, died today, apparently of a heart attack.

The 53-year-old star of the former Brooklyn Dodgers was dead on arrival at Stamford Hospital after being stricken early this morning at his home here.

Robinson, who retired as a player in 1957, became the first black to play in the majors when he joined the National League Dodgers in 1947 and helped lead the club to the league championship.

Police said they received a call for Robinson's wife at 6:26 a.m. EDT, saying her husband was very ill. Officers went to the house and administered oxygen. He was taken by ambulance to the hospital, where he was dead on arrival.

Robinson's exploits at first base and at the plate the first year earned Rookie of the Year honors. Two years later, he led the league in batting with an average of .342 and was named the National League's most valuable player.

Robinson quit baseball in 1957 rather than go through with a trade to the New York Giants. He took a job as vice president of Chock Full O' Nuts, the coffee and restaurant organization.

During that time, he began devoting free time to the civil rights movement, touring the country on weekends to make speeches and raise funds for the NAACP. Since his retirement and in recent years, he had also become active in national Republican politics.

PINEHURST, N.C. — Fourtime Walker Cup player Bill Hyndman III of Huntington Valley, Pa., fired a two-under par 70 to lead first-day qualifiers in the North and South Men's Seniors Tournament.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have asked waivers on veteran infielders Bill Mazeroski and Jose Pagan.

Mazeroski already had announced his retirement and will take over as Pirate third base coach next season.

Pagan was placed on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release. If no club claims him, Pagan will be offered a minor league managing position in the Pirate farm system.

BARCELONA, Spain — Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 to win the singles title in the Spanish International Championship.

Tanner Top AL Manager

CHICAGO (AP) — Towards the end of the regular American League season, Billy Martin of the Detroit Tigers told Chuck Tanner of the Chicago White Sox: "It's got to be either you or me for Manager of the Year."

That was disclosed today by Tanner, who was named Monday the AL Manager of the Year in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters. The White Sox finished 5½ games behind the Oakland A's, newly crowned World champions, in the AL West race.

"If you win, I'll send you a congratulatory wire, and if I win, you can send me one," is the way Martin was quoted by Tanner.

It turned out Tanner received 213 votes to capture the coveted honor, while Eddie Kasko of the Boston Red Sox collected 140, and Martin was third with 66.

Tanner, in only his second full major league season, made a season-long run at the Oakland A's mainly with a threeman show—Dick Allen, Wilbur Wood and Carlos May.

The charismatic Tanner, once a journeyman big league outfielder, accepted the Manager of The Year honor with complete surprise.

"Is that right?" he kept repeating when informed of his selection. "What do you say? I'm very grateful and it's a big thrill to me. I have to credit the whole White Sox organization, from the scouts to the players who did the job.

Tanner joined the White Sox late in 1970, a season in which the club finished with a horrible 56-106 record and a major league low attendance of 495,355.

What's The Law

The Case Of The Sexy Sleeper

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Dr. Prude ran his dental office with the utmost propriety. In fact, he could not have been any more proper had he been raised by Little Orphan Annie. Consequently, when gorgeous-looking Irma slithered into his dental chair one day, he didn't bat an eyelash. He promptly put her under gas and prepared to extract a tooth.

Then it happened. While unconscious, and while Dr. Prude was fussing around in her mouth, Irma suddenly grabbed the hapless dentist by a very private part of his anatomy and doggedly refused to let go.

Struggling to preserve his virtue, the highly embarrassed dentist tugged and pulled frantically at his patient's hand to free himself from her vise- like grip. Unfortunate' when he finally broke loose he also broke her index finger. And when Irma came out of her deep sleep and found that she could only point in right angles, she sued the perplexed dentist for having broken her finger.

"I didn't do it on purpose," protested the dentist in court. "I was only trying to defend myself. After all, I just couldn't stand there and let myself be sexually attacked."

"I didn't attack anybody," was Irma's answer. "I was sound asleep at the time. If a dentist is going to put a patient under gas, he should be prepared to deal with that person's subconscious."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the hapless dentist pay Irma for her broken finger.

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a dentist must take precautions to prevent injury to his patients as well as to himself. In this case, concluded the judge, had Dr. Prude used wrist straps or some other restraining device on Irma when putting her to sleep, the incident could have been avoided.

235-Pounder Dumped As Queen Hopeful

AKRON, Ohio (AP)— Stephen Simmons got bumped as a candidate for homecoming queen at the University of Akron but he may have won the day for university males.

The 235- pound sophomore claims he was ruled out of the running because contest rules call for queen entrants to be women.

No so, said the university's student supreme court after broad deliberation Monday.

The court said it was because the Norton, Ohio, queen aspirant didn't submit an application. Besides, said the Student Judiciary Committee of the Associated Student Government, Simmon's write- in votes were destroyed in accordance with past tradition.

The court did suggest that any reference to sex be cut from qualifications for future queen candidates and that all votes, write- in or printed, be counted.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Thus speaks the high and exalted one, whose name is holy, who lives for ever: I dwell in a high and holy place with him who is broken and humble in spirit. (Isaiah 57:15, NEB)

PRAYER: Lord, may we be so sensitive to Your spirit that we may understand Your message, and then obey Your will as shown in it. In Christ's name. Amen.

A GOOD DAY for ducking out with a pal, and Alice Dolan, 2, brought along some bread as a friendship gesture in Bradford, Pa.

FETCHING—Cotton in an American Beauty red print makes a feminine frock with smocking all across the bodice. Lace outlines the neck and gives an apron-effect to the full-skirted dress by Polly Flinders. The fabric's by Henry Glass.

SNAPPY—Big brass buttons march down the front of this crimson pinafore of wide wale cotton corduroy. Designed by Magic Years, it's in Cone Mills fabric. Completing the outfit is a puffed sleeve blouse in Inwood cotton.

The accident occurred at 5:15 p.m. when the Groves auto at a high rate of speed came up behind the car driven by Edith Bailey who slowed to make a left turn. Groves struck the Bailey car in the rear and also struck a third car driven by Kenneth Barry Ivie in the side.

A car towing another auto overturned in a ditch and injured three persons in an accident at 12:45 p.m. on Highway 67 two miles south of Coldwater. A tire on the towed vehicle blew out causing the driver, Charles Stroud, 20, of Granite City, Ill., to lose control of his car.

Injured in the accident were Carrie Renee Stroud, two months, cut on forehead; Mark Green, 16, of Granite City, Ill., fractured left hand; and Arthur Dale Stroud, 14, of Granite City, Ill., head cuts and a possible concussion. They were taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown.

here, he said the loss of generating capability due to natural gas curtailment and the substitution of fuel oil during the peak load season this year amounted to about 533,000 kilowatts. He said this represented about 6 per cent of the system's generating capability.

Operating companies of the system are Louisiana Power and Light, Mississippi Power and Light, New Orleans Public Service Icn., Arkansas Power & Light and Arkansas-Missouri Power Co.

Conversion of the generating units to oil fuel will make them less efficient in the production of electricity, Lewis said. He said modifications cost about $20 per kilowatt and idle a plant for two to five months.

No Trace Of Boggs

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Search missions have found no trace of a light plane which disappeared more than a week ago, carrying House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three others.

A storm front which hampered air search operations Monday began to show signs of clearing Monday night, but for the eighth day a spokesman for the Rescue Coordination Center at nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base reported finding nothing.

The 17th Coast Guard District in Juneau reported early today it still has four aircraft participating in the search but that two of its four cutters were being withdrawn.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the ships had been through the same waters time and again without finding any trace of the missing plane.

Coast Guard planes in Juneau were grounded Monday by "high turbulence with a 500-foot ceiling," a spokesman said, and only about 15 of some 50 available planes took part in the search.

But Monday night the National Weather Service reported clearing from Anchorage to Cordova, about one-third of the 560-mile flight path to Juneau that the plane carrying the 58year-old Boggs planned to follow.

Also aboard the missing Cessna 310 were Rep. Nick Begich of Alaska, 40; Russell L. Brown, 37, a Begich aide, and Don E. Jonz, 38, president of Pan Alaska Airways and pilot of the plane.

Photographs of the primary search route, which has been covered one or more times in the week since the plane disappeared, have so far turned up nothing.

Air Force officials have refused to give up hope for the plane, pointing out that recoveries have been made after search planes have flown over an area six or seven times, only to spot airplanes on the next try.

Kissinger Reports On Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger reported to President Nixon and Secretary of State William Rogers today on his extensive talks with Nguyen Van Thieu, who at about the same time, was condemning the Communists' peace proposals.

The mid-morning session in Nixon's office was the President's second with the presidential advisor since his return late Monday from five days of talks in Saigon.

Just as the meeting began, word came from Saigon that Thieu had denounced the Communist proposals as "dark schemes aimed at taking over South Vietnam."

Kissinger, Nixon's chief national-security adviser, and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Creighton W. Abrams returned here on separate military flights Monday night from nearly a week of meetings with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

"We made some progress," Kissinger said on arriving in Washington. He met with Nixon for 30 minutes Monday night, the White House said.

Although the U.S. embassy in Saigon described the high-level meetings as having "made progress," there was no sign Kissinger convinced Thieu to agree to some form of coalition government with the Viet Cong.

Tin Song, a South Vietnamese newspaper that generally expresses Thieu's stands, said the talks with Kissinger were held in a "very heated atmosphere in the face of unyielding Vietnamt determination to stand pat on its position."

That position as expressed earlier by the official South Vietnamese radio is to "never accept a two-, three-or four-segment government."

With speculation continuing unabated that Kissinger and North Vietnamese officials earlier had reached agreements in principle on a cease-fire of some type involving total U.S. withdrawal and return of prisoners, the Saigon refusal to accede to a coalition appears the major obstacle.

Officials in Washington said the United States still holds out hope for some settlement—or at least a statement of principles—before the Nov. 7 presidential election.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon's Cease- Fire

OUR 61st YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, | TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1972 | 14 PAGES | NUMBER 204

Thieu Says No To Imposed Peace Pact

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu declared tonight no one has the right to impose a peace settlement on South Vietnam, but added that a cease-fire may be declared soon.

Thieu said his country will accept the cease-fire only if it covers all Indochina under international supervision. He rejected the idea of a tripartite or coalition government.

"If a cease-fire occurs before or after the U.S. elections, we will stand pat on our firm position," Thieu said.

By declaring his opposition to an imposed peace agreement, Thieu indicated sharp disagreement in discussions with the United States on an Indochina settlement.

Thieu spoke out after five days of talks with Henry A. Kissinger, who is now back in Washington.

Kissinger and the U.S. Embassy had said the talks "made progress."

"If a cease-fire occurs, we will always respect it, but the Communists will not," Thieu said. "We respect peace, a cease-fire."

He coupled this with an appeal to all political and religious groups to participate with the Saigon government in case a cease-fire should occur.

His speech was essentially a reiteration of South Vietnam's long-standing position on an Indochina peace settlement. Thieu said he would not be forced into an agreement he did not want.

"No one has the right to sign any agreement, any cease-fire pact or peace pact for the South Vietnamese. Only the South Vietnamese can do it for themselves," he said.

The remark appeared aimed at the United States but Thieu said his discussions with Kissinger had been "very useful and clear discussions."

Natural Gas Supply Cut Back

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Floyd W. Lewis, president of the Middle South Utilities System, said Monday the system could not generate as much electricity as it feels it should because its supply of natural gas has been curtailed.

Additional Funds Needed For Mrs. Glenda Sullivan

An appeal was made today by members of the Sikeston Community Emergency Fund for additional money to help Mrs. Glenda Sullivan of Sikeston who is awaiting a kidney transplant.

The committee, composed of Mrs. Jolene Walker, Mrs. Alta Gunn, Mrs. Ann Elliott, Rev. T. A. McDonough, Clem Beal and Ray Sellers, met today to discuss ways of raising more money.

Mrs. Sullivan received her first kidney treatment on an artificial kidney machine June 28 and since August has been receiving two treatments weekly. Supplies to maintain the machine amount to $500 a month, with each session costing $40. Mrs. Sullivan will remain on the machine until she is able to receive a kidney transplant.

Approximately $4,000 has been raised in the community for Mrs. Sullivan's transplant operation, however, she needs additional money for her living expenses. She has three small children, ages 5,

Seed Showing High Moisture

The Sikeston Cotton Oil Mill is not accepting cotton seed that has been harvested with a high moisture content, according to Clovis Lancaster, assistant manager.

Seed purchased so far has been at a moisture level of about 16 to 20 per cent and the mill will not buy any more cotton seed until it reaches a level of from 12 to 14 per cent.

Farmers in surrounding counties are having a problem harvesting cotton with high moisture content in their seed due to recent rains and will have to wait for the seed to dry before selling.

State Demo Chairwoman Says Voters Turned Off By Nixion

That's the opinion of Mrs. Lynn Foster of St. Louis. Mrs. Foster is vice chairwoman of Missourians for McGovern- Shriver and associated state coordinator of the McGovern campaign.

She charged that Republicans have created a complete unbelief in government. "They've managed to make the government process distrusted and made it difficult for people to believe in candidates," she said.

Asked if voters distrusted Democratic candidates, she said no.

Democrats have always been concerned for government by and for the people," she said. "Republicans have always been for the elite."

Mrs. Foster said the issues in this campaign revolve around belief in government, honesty, integrity and trust.

The campaign is very similar to Franklin D. Roosevelt's campaign, she said. The Republicans tried to scare the voters by painting FDR as a radical who would ruin the country. Instead, she said, he brought jobs, prosperity and social security.

Lashing out at alleged scandals in the Nixon administration, she said the Nixon administration has been filled with "lies, deceit and scandal." McGovern, on the other hand, "has guts, decency and integrity," she said.

But will McGovern win? "I don't think there's any question of that," she said.

MRS. LYNN FOSTER of St. Louis, vice chairwoman of Missourians for McGovern- Shriver and associate state coordinator for the McGovern campaign, put up a campaign sign Monday at Scott County Democratic Headquarters in Kingsway Plaza Mall.

Water Plant Bids Opened

DEXTER — The City Council held a special meeting Monday night to open bids on a new water plant to be built near a Hickory House Restaurant northwest of Dexter.

Low bidder for construction of the new water plant was L and T Construction Co. of Grand Rivers, Ky., with a bid of $270,600.

The council reported the bid is higher than the amount of money available and negotiations with the construction company will be undertaken at a later date.

The board and attorney for a new water supply district to be built north and west of Dexter also met with the council to discuss plans for the new district.

Mayor Willis Conners appointed a committee to study the new district and make recommendations to the board at the next council meeting on Nov. 6.

USO Emphasizes Its Middle Name--Service

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth in a series of articles about the 11 agencies benefiting from the United Fund Campaign. Today's article deals with the United Service Organization (USO).

By RON PORTER

Millions of servicemen have spent hours of their free time in facilities provided by the United Service Organization (USO). Thirty million visited USO clubs in 1971 alone, and in the first three months of this year, over three million servicemen and their dependants used USO facilities.

Sikeston residents can contribute to the USO through the United Fund. The Sikeston UF has allotted $500 of its $46,347 goal to USO and its work.

Perhaps the best known facility is the USO club where servicemen can relax, watch television, listen to records or radio, write letters of pick up free tickets to sports events, movies or theatres.

But the clubs are not the only activity of the organization. In 1972, USO found jobs for about 3,000 veterans, active servicemen and their dependants, through job finding programs. All jobs for active servicemen were part- time jobs designed to suppliment their military income.

Drug abuse programs are presented at USO clubs, and about 200 servicemen were referred for drug abuse treatment through March of this year.

The USO provides "Rap House" programs where servicemen may visit and obtain advice and assistance from fellow servicemen, medical specialists and community leaders.

Nearly 1,200 individual instruction sessions were held in USO facilities around the world for servicemen and their wives. These included such topics as photography classes, dressmaking classes and American homemaking classes for foreign wives.

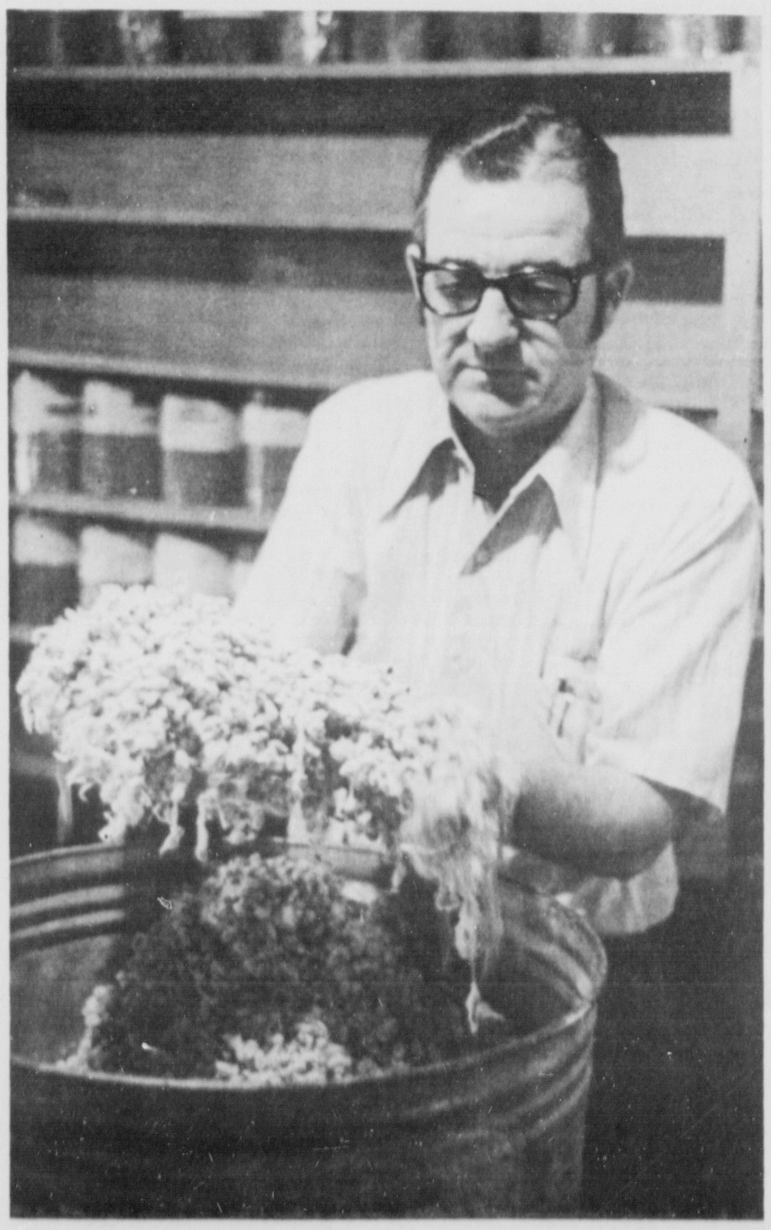

Free telephone calls to families and friends were provided for over 2,000 servicemen during the first three months of 1972. During the same period, 2,200 free buffets, luncheons and dinners were provided.

In the first three months of the year, 42 USO shows toured overseas bases with a total audience estimated at 1,905,000. Nearly 100,000 free tickets for motion pictures, stage presentations, sports events and other entertainment were distributed to servicemen in the United States.

But the USO doesn't always help just those in the military service. The USO helps servicemen serve the local community through Big Brother programs, Golden Age parties for the elderly, environmental programs and some inner city projects.

In Europe, USO operations increased about 30 per cent during 1971 over the previous year. A new club was opened in Frankfurt, West Germany. Others are scheduled to open in Spain and Iceland.

In the Pacific, USO operations were increased to six, while in Vietnam the number still operating dropped to 12. However activities increased in Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Guam, Okinawa and Taiwan.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If a man sits in thought at his home as long as five minutes, his women folks begin to wonder what devilment he is up to now.

* * *

TOO MUCH "TOO"

Today is the day that follows Veterans Day, but it has an identity all its own. Anthony Enterprises of Chicago has dedicated the day to a Crusade Against Too, the object of which is to cry out against "too much or too little of anything in our personal lives." What better time for such an observance than the latter stage of an election campaign, when the universal complaint is that politicians promise too much and deliver too little?

"Too," in its secondary meaning of "to such a degree as to be regrettable," is a word that is used too much, as is its cousin "very." Both words sap the vitality from the adjectives or adverbs to which they are joined. The same objection applies to such superlatives as "greatest," "best," "fastest," and "most." Second best is no longer considered good enough. New York's Empire State Building, the world's tallest skyscraper for more than three decades, soon will drop to third in the height sweepstakes. Instead of accepting the demotion gracefully, the structure's owners are thinking about adding 11 stories to restore the Empire State to first place. And they are doing so at a time when Manhattan has too much vacant office space and people in many cities are complaining that buildings already are too high.

Yes, "too" is a worthy target for a crusade. Let moderation rule! Certainly, presidential candidates who stray too far from the golden political mean do so at their peril. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican nominee, alienated many when he said in his acceptance speech that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice" and "moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." The Sixties were a decade of too much of many things, and now, perhaps, people are ready to embrace blandness.

* * *

Halloween novelty manufacturers are hard put to make something that doesn't look like what we see every day in a mod world.

* * *

Under this administration, favoritism to big business and special interest has dominated the Washington scene. The International Telephone and Telegraph schedule, the Water Gate bugging, the Wheat Export Deal, the raising of millions in unreported campaign funds have besmirched the administration and have shaken the faith of the people in the integrity of their government. By absorbing power within the White House the President has been unable to rule in secret; power is held by men who, by claiming executive privilege, can avoid questioning by Congress.

Over and above all this, there is a moral issue that must dominate the election. The American people are called to answer the question whether they believe in official government policy of mercilessly bombing a little Asian nation and its people into oblivion, for no good reason, is an honorable course for the greatest Military power the earth has seen. We think it is dishonorable, immoral and self defeating, and the antithesis of what every American ought to stand for.

The Arizona Farm Bureau Federation said: "Industrial and urban expansion is taking up farmland at the rate of 1.5 million acres a year, says U. S. News and World Report. In California, urbanization is taking an average of 375 acres of farmland a day."

The Linguist. In Detroit, charged with begging, Fred Johnson handed notes to police explaining that he was a deaf mute, but when the judge irritably asked him if he could talk, he proudly replied: "I can speak English, Spanish, German and a little French," got 60 days in jail.

NO MORE DISSENT?

In his surprise appearance before a gathering of relatives of prisoners of war, President Nixon provided the nation with a revealing and distrubing insight into his concept of the function of the press. The leaders of the media, Mr. Nixon declared, "are expected to stand by the President of the United States when he makes a terribly difficult and potentially unpopular decision."

Because a decision is difficult, he is saying, the press should not quarrel with it. Loyalty. Obedience. Support. Is that why the First Amendment was enacted? We think not. The duty of the press is not to the President or the Government, but to the people. The duty of the press is to report events, and to examine the policies and conduct of government, supporting them when it believes they are proper and disagreeing with them when it believes they are wrong. If, as the President claims, the press is required to stand by his decisions because they are difficult and because they are made by the President, does it not follow that dissent is treason?

BUT HOW'S HE TURN THE PAGES?

We came across a news report about a 17- year- old boy in San Diego which proves that none of us are equally endowed with abilities, regardless of those who believe educational enrichment and revisions in society's structure will make us all equal and one big happy family.

Greg Peseley is determined not to be a genius, and the reason he's so determined is that he has been told he might be someday.

For Greg, among other things, can read faster than any other known human being -- up to 203,000 words per minute.

He has averaged between 4,500 to 27,000 words per minute on the toughest battery of tests around.

"He has a unique ability to store information that others don't have," said Wilson Schurr, assistant professor in charge of the University of San Diego Educational Development Center. "He's absolutely fantastic. I believe it must be something in his genetic makeup that enables him to do this."

Schurr tested Greg after a summer school instructor recognized his unique ability.

"To start out with I handed him a book and told him to read for 10 minutes. I figured if he really was terrific he might get a third of the way through the book."

Schurr decided to put Greg through a battery of McGraw-Hill reading tests.

"In all my years the best anyone has ever done on that test is 3,000 words per minute. And that happened only once," Schurr said.

"Greg's lowest score on some very difficult reading matter was 4,500 words per minute."

But he peaked at 27,000 words per minute -- nine times faster than the previous high, according to Schurr.

"Then I had my secretary bring in a book she had just read, called 'The Other.' Greg took a few minutes to read it, and then he and my secretary discussed it."

Greg admits that he reads factual material faster, but slows down for things like good novels.

"I'm afraid I might miss some things if I read a Hemingway novel at 27,000 words a minute," Greg said. "I'd get the story line, but I'd miss a lot of what he wanted to say."

The average reading speed in the United States is 250 words per minute with 45 per cent comprehension, compared to Greg's 27,000 words per minute with 85 per cent comprehension.

Greg enjoys chess, he's vice president of his senior class and an associate editor of the school annual.

And oh, yes. He doesn't want to be a genius.

"I'm thinking of becoming a photographer," he said.

So what else can we add -- except, how about that!

A REDICULOUS SITUATION

An official of a large timber company has explained why many industries are approaching a dead end in planning future expansion. He says, "We are in a ridiculous situation ... the public is demanding environmental improvement; business is, by and large, willing to provide it ... but, governmental competition for the environmental leadership role is frustrating both public and industry, and seriously delaying the pollution control effort."

A measure was before the last Congress that, if passed, would put the states largely out of thy picture so far as pollution control is concerned. The federal government would be in completed control. Many believe the states are in a more effective position to undertake real environmental improvement in line with existing area and community needs. But that is beside the point. Whether the rules for environmental quality control are to originate at the state or federal level, it is a fact that, "Until industry has these standards to work from, and until it feels that they will remain relatively unchanged for a reasonable time period, it will remain almost paralyzed in meeting environmental demand ... it cannot justify the cost to shareholders of major new installations, or the development of major new technologies, if it has no assurance that they will meet standards at the time of installation ... in any industry with potential environmental impact, it becomes virtually impossible to justify the risk of building a major new factory to replace an environmentally obsolete one, to provide new jobs, to lower costs, to increase productivity or to increase local tax bases. Such installations generally will have to be deferred until the environmental rule book is in hand."

The public remains too often unaware of the facts of industrial production as related to environmental protection. Instead of getting facts, people are being subjected to an overdose of emotional, crusading and political oratory while job creating industries mark time.

WHO ARE "THEY"?

Whenever anything goes wrong that nebulous entity called "they" is likely to get the blame. "They" befoul the environment. "They" build faulty appliances. Right at the moment utility company managements are a prominent "they" group.

Today the typical executive of a power company looks out his office window at an awesome expanse of city. He sees lights stretching to the horizon. He visualizes the homes, factories, hospitals -- the millions of service requirements which his company must meet without fail. He also sees the dilemma posed by those who mistakenly blame energy production rather than people for the rising tide of pollution. He must show them somehow that abundant energy is the basis of a wholesome environment. He must also convince public regulators of the need for rates and earnings that will enable the company to meet rising costs of new pollution control technology -- and rising demands for power that will be coming from the remaining dark spots out there on the horizon -- outside his office window.

There are a lot of "theys" like this typical executive in the utility business. They are all faced with the same problems that are the outgrowth of an expanding population and crowded cities. And, of course, "they" are among the doers and achievers who get the blame whenever anything goes wrong. In an age of high expectations, it is well to pause occasionally to realize that perfection is a relative term -- always sought but never attained.

SMALLER CHAINS LIFT MUCH HEAVIER LOADS

Lighter smaller chain, with from 25 per cent to 100 per cent greater strength, size for size, then previous types is industry's answer to the need for heavier crane or boom loads, the National Association of Chain Manufacturers points out.

Loads to be lifted are reaching unprecedented weights as designers call for ever-larger generators, boilers, transformers, turbines and other equipment that chain and hoisting equipment has to handle.

The smaller size, lighter weight and greater strength of the alloy chains now available means that corresponding reductions in size and weight can be made in the equipment with which these chains are used, as well as in storage space and in-plant handling equipment.

BRAVE SPIRIT STILL LIVES IN U.S.A.

Many a patriotic heart beat stronger and prouder to see that the families of U.S. prisoners of war and missing in action are standing courageously against the communist campaign to use the prisoner issue against our country, trying to divide us and weaken resistance to communist aggression and subversion.

It would be so easy for the families of the prisoners and the missing to fall for the communist campaign. The Red scheme should be working, since it is as adroit and clever as communist schemes usually are. But it is failing miserably at this point.

The Red scheme has impressed the "liberal," soft-on- communism opinion-molders but the chief targets, the families of the men in question, are not buying. Here's how the scheme was supposed to work: the Reds release a few prisoners with great propaganda world wide, having them brought out of Hanoi by so- called U.S. anti-war activists. Then the families of remaining prisoners and missing men are supposed to storm the White House and the halls of Congress demanding immediate surrender to communists so as to recover the U.S. men in POW camps.

The families, organized in the League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, convened in Washington and booed the pleas for surrender to Red blackmail and supported a "hawkish" stand on getting the captives back.

This is the spirit of Valley Forge and of the Alamo, the never- give- in- to- tyranny courage which made possible the creation of this Republic USA out of a hostile wilderness. It is splendid to see that that brave spirit still lives, despite communist blackmail, among the families who have the most to lose by standing firm, at least in the short term. They are wise families, wise and strong in the spirit which can defeat tyranny in the only way possible: by being braver than the enemy. HLH

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Press speculation that President Nixon is playing politics with a Vietnam cease-fire, say those familiar with the secret negotiations, is untrue and unfair.

No doubt the President would like to be able to boast before the election that he had ended the fighting in Vietnam. But those who have discussed the subject with him say his political instincts warn against a pre- election truce.

For the terms, once they are announced, are bound to displease either the hawks or doves, perhaps both. Politically speaking, the President believes it is better to keep the settlement terms vague until after the election.

But Richard Nixon, though he will present his actions to the public in the best possible political light, puts patriotism ahead of politics. No one who has participated in the Vietnam policy discussions has any doubt about that. They tell us he won't continue the war a day longer than he considers necessary to secure an "honorable peace."

The voters may quarrel with him over his concept of an "honorable peace," say our sources, but not over his motivation. He believes he is close to a settlement that could prevent a communist take- over of South Vietnam. This objective, he feels, is worth a few more weeks of war.

George McGovern, on the other hand, believes the fighting has lost all purpose except to keep the Thieu regime in power. He doesn't consider President Thieu worth another American life. The U.S. devastation of Vietnam, in McGovern's view, is almost immoral.

The voters should judge the opposing views, not question the patriotism of the candidates. For both men are sincere.

Earlier this year, President Nixon made a decision on Vietnam that he thought could hurt him politically. He ordered the mining of North Vietnam's harbors and the bombing of her supply lines, despite apprehension that the decision would be unpopular with the American voters.

He also ignored the assessment of his intelligence services that the bombing and minng could not stop the flow of military supplies into North Vietnam. The assessment has now been confirmed. Five months after the President's action, food, fuel and munitions are still plentiful in North Vietnam.

But the President's main purpose, our sources say, was to shake Hanoi's confidence in her communist big brothers. He was confident that neither Moscow nor Peking would respond to the bombing and mining with anything more than rhetoric. This migh help convince the North Vietnamese, he felt, that they couldn't count on their powerful allies in a crunch and, therefore, should settle the war at the negotiating table.

The President feels his strategy, for all its high political risks, is paying off. Washington and Hanoi are now close to a cease-fire agreement that meets his definition of "honorable." Under the formula that has come out of the Paris truce talks, each side, during the cease- fire, would administer the territory its troops now control. A coalition government would rule Saigon until internationally supervised elections could be held.

This would give the communists a voice they don't now have in Saigon, which President Thieu is fiercely resisting. White House negotiator Henry Kissinger is trying to persuade him this is the best possible settlement.

Kissinger has argued, in effect, that both sides participated in the fighting, therefore both sides should participate in the interim government. Neither side can be expected to wait out in the cold, he contends, and let the other run the government during the cease- fire.

NARCOTICS AND BANKS

Congress will lay bare the financial heart of the world narcotics racket next year by showing that "respectable" bankers finance international heroin dealers.

For years, Congress has skirted the issue, throwing the spotlight, instead, on the Mafia overlords, dope addicts, the narcotics police and others who can be more comfortably put under congressional kleig lights.

The hints of corrupt bankers doing business with the mob have been muted. The bankers rested secure in their counting houses. The dope trade flourished.

Now, Sen. Walter Mondale, D.-Minn., chairman of a Senate Banking subcommittee, is taking on the chore, as he puts it, of exposing "the banking and financial operations that underlie the illegal international traffic in narcotics."

Mondale must first be reelected, but he is a heavy favorite to defeath the Republican rival. Until the election, however, his plans for hearings in the next sesssion must remain conditional. but already his staff is at work on the bank investigation.

They are focusing on prominent banks in Japan, Southeast Asia and Switzerland. These arythe "narcotics banks" whose names are mentioned in whispers in the hushed and paneled boardrooms of the international banking brotherhood.

Mondale has already learned that the banks do not finance the Corsican, Italian, Latin American and ethnic Chinese lords of narcotics directly. The loans are made, instead, to legitimate businessmen. They, in turn, may act as both financial agents and fronts for somewhat seedier clients. And the bank loans may be secured by phony Mafia stock certificates.

As the chain of intermediaries stretches closer to the drug wholesaler, the collateral becomes, in effect, warehouses of heroin, brown morphine or stockpiles of raw opium.

Thus the bankers, who never need soil their manicured fingers by shaking the hands of the dope merchants, indirectly finance them and accept as collateral fields full of opium poppies.

Some of the "narcotics bankers" are only vaguely aware that they are loaning money through fronts to drug wholesalers. Others know they are financing drug addiction, but cannot resist the lure of high-interest short- term loans.

Mondale's task will be to trace the loans from the banks to the drug wholesalers. This will require overcoming the traditional and legal secrecy of he international banks. although his subpoena powers do not extend overseas, he hopes to send investigators to Switzerland, Hong Kong, Japan and possibly even mainland China.

Meanwhile, Mondale's staff is in contact with the Federal Bureau Of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, which for years has tried to tell the world that narcotics, like any other big business, has its bankers and middlemen.

Up to now, few have listened.

Ballots For Bullets? Nation's Tiny Black Panther Sect Reaching For Power in Multi-Billion- Dollar Poverty Projects

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. — After a series of cross-country sorties along campaign trails, I find there is one strange election drive which is little heeded by uptight cities back East. Cities which would whirl convulsively at the news have not been told that the chairman, Bobby Seale, co-founder of the Black Panther Party (BPP), is running for major of Oakland, California's baseball citadel, apparently no more short of cash than he is of chestiness.

This is strange. For the Black Panthers, as a party and national network, now is virtually nonexistent. Where once it had several thousand members, the BPP now is down to some 375 hard-core members, about 175 quasi-members or "close associates" used in community action.

Where once its weekly newspaper, the "Black Panther" circulated 180,000, it now has a press run of some 50,000 printed in Chicago and distributed mostly in the San Francisco Bay area and in New York, and to a lesser extent in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Where once there were 40 to 50 robust chapters in such "outlying cities" as Houston and Charlotte, N. C., there now are 26 tightly controlled units. There is no recruiting. There is only what the insiders call the "burning down" of the faithful. The Panther leadership apparently isn't interested in size but in Political seizure.

It has made much of "putting down the gun." But its literature still toys with headlines such as "Shoot to Kill." Yet it has managed to work its way into the social and political woodwork. It has a series of survival programs which have intrigued the elders of the black community, and even the most moderate such as Roy Wilkins welcome the Panthers back as prodigals.

Rarely has there been such a whirlabout. There are visits and seminars and cocktail parties and receptions and book nights and political action. Back in March the Panthers registered 11,000 voters in a few days. There even has been a talk by Supreme Commander and Defense Minister Huey Newton before a National Assn. of Black Manufactures.

The inner-city action appears endless and unmarked on the "inter-communal" front. There are in this Black Panther Survival Program: Free Breakfast Program; Free Busing to Prisons Program; Free commissary for Prisoners Program; Legal Aid Educational Program; People's Free Clothing Program; The David Hilliard People's Free Shoe Program; The Angela Davis People's Free Food Program (though the itinerant lady appears to have slipped out of Panther favor), and Liberation Schools.

They have also set up The People's Free Medical Research Health Clinic; People's Free Ambulance Service; The Sickle Cell Anemia Research Foundation; Free Plumbing and Maintenance Program; People's Free Dental Program; People's Free Optometry Program; People's Free Furniture Program, and the People:s Free Linen Program- just to mention a few which have been trumpeted recently.

There even is talk of developing a black capitalism of the Panthers' very own with a mass production schedule of consumer goods.

The re-imaging has been a vivid and almost instant good neighbor. In six years the party and the organization have turned from a self-styled gun-slinging network of feuding and ferocious bands, openly dedicated to slaughtering police, to a seemingly gentle psalm-singing troupe of sidewalk evangelists. From intractable youths dedicated to the bullet to those hailing the ballot, from leather coated neo-Marxists and Maoists to those eager to work with the Establishment.

This conversion puzzles many. Some observers are cynical. They note that the Panthers seek out the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), Community Action Programs, and some Panthers seek lodging in well-paying jobs in the Model Cities Program.

Few outsiders realize how many hundreds of millions are spent by the decentralized Community Action Boards. Or exactly what the Model Cities Program is. Grants are handed out anywhere from half a million to four and five million dollars in annual appropriations, say government officials who should know where the money is going.

And there are housing projects into which are thrown hundreds of thousands of dollars in "seed" money and then millions more for actual construction. Battles have been fought by rival factions in some communities-- violent and destructive -- for control of these funds. Such as in the case of a $20 million New York Side housing plan.

Not only money but power springs from these government program funds which must eventually be spent by the local Community Action Boards in Ghettos across the nation. There's heavy cash on the poverty front--much of it spent by "Boards of Dorectors" which are elected by handfuls of community "residents."

So Federal officials, whose task it is to keep the Panthers under surveillance, say the ballot will pay off far more than the bullet in a score of cities where most of the citizenry and most of the municipal officials just don't want to "get involved" once the money is "trickled" down to the Community Action Programs.

So the nation, especially those interested in seeing what happens to the money for the needy, might well watch the fascinating Oakland election as well as that other race of national significance.

Before the white man made the handshake the popular method of greeting in America, members of some Indian tribes said hello by blowing in each other's ears.

The U.S. recordholder for making the most handshakes in one day, according to the National Geographic Society, is still President Theodore Roosevelt, who once palmed the palms of 8,513 people at a White House New Year's reception early in this century.

Who, in your opinion, was the greatest man in history? In an international poll of students made a number of years ago, the winner was a surprise — Louis Pasteur. If you were asked this question today, whom would you choose? I'd say the honor prpbably belongs to some unknown someone fame never touched and history never knew. And, as the old saying suggests, if he was that good, he probably died young.

A poor investor: The average squirrel is more of an example of successful energy than unerring intelligence. Like the absent-minded professor, it is likely to forget what it has done. It usually doesn't find by spring, even during a hard winter, anywhere near half of the up to 20 bushels of nuts it has hidden in the earth.

Harbin Cites Economics Of Sikeston Public Schools

Sikeston public schools are operating on a budget amounting to about $4.5 million this fiscal year, Supt. Sam Harbin told the Rotary Club Monday night at Ramada Inn.

Harbin said the majority of these dollars are spent in the Sikeston trade area. Citing an economic assumption that the dollar turns over seven times before it moves out of a trade area, he compared the school to a $30 million industry, one of the largest in the area.

"Although economics are important, the school's business is people; your children," Harbin stated. "The school's product is a well- educated graduate, not only academic but job preparation as well.

"Our mission is to prepare students to succeed in society, economically as well as socially, and at the same time, we must operate in an efficient, businesslike way to use your tax dollar."

The Rotarians were told that the school system not only contributes importantly in product and dollars to the community it serves, but is a medium- size industry in regard to employment. In addition to the 292 certificated staff members, the system employs 175 people in supportive services.

Harbin discussed the school's role as a customer of private enterprise. The system spends $275,000 per year for food, uses 60,000 to 80,000 gallons of gasoline each year, spends around $60,000 for utilities annually, and thousands of dollars are spent annually in repairs and upkeep of the $17 million worth of buildings in the school district.

He said that, in general, the community is proud of the school system and the exceptionally capable staff of school teachers working for and with the students.

"We, who work for the district realize that the citizens demand good schools; that the business community demands good schools; that industry is particular about the school system of any community when considering locating facilities there."

Aside from the many positive aspects of the school system, Harbin talked about a major detriment of the system; the population problem in grades six through 12. "Middle School, built in 1915 to house 600 students has long been a population problem school.

Even with the acquisition of the Bailey School which has eight good size classrooms, the facility is not adequate to provide a quality program to the students in grades 6-7-8. One thousand seventy students attend the middle school at the present time, causing severe overcrowded conditions to exist in all departments of the school's operation.

Sam Harbin

The high school was built in 1960 for approximately 900 students. Since that time, the enrollment picture has worsened with growing freshman classes and an expanding curriculum. Today, over 1,300 students are enrolled in that unit.

The board of education, with the assistance of a feasibility study committee, has been analyzing this problem since the middle of last school year. After considering a number of alternatives, the board of education elected to place before the community a building proposal for a new junior high school, which would house the eighth grade from middle school and the ninth grade from high school.

The high school's population would be reduced about 400 students and the middle school approximately the same. The junior high school would be built to accommodate 900 students, providing room for growth at the high school for grades 10-12, and at the middle school for grades six and seven.

Each of the three units would have a smaller student population than the present middle or high school, providing easier management and better control.

Harbin stated, "This new school could be a reality without a tax increase since enough school bonds are being retired this year to allow the district to assume additional indebtedness with the same bond payment. The school would cost $1 million to build and furnish, and would be located on a 16.2-acre site already owned by the school district adjacent to the high school campus."

He stated that the school could be in operation by the second semester of the 1973-74 school year, if the community approves the proposal.

At the conclusion of the program, the Rotary Club voted to unanimously support the building program.

Jaycee Wives Asked To Support New Jail

The wives were asked to support the new jail proposal and work with the community to assure the bill's passage on election day.

Nov. 18 was designated as Relish and Sweet Bread Day in Dexter. The members agreed to send Christmas packages to Stoddard County servicemen in Vietnam.

However, persons can still be accommodated at the afternoon session, he said. The registration fee is $1.

Greenwald said one of the purposes of the seminar is to highlight current accounting problems.

Speaker at the dinner meeting will be Don Breimeier of St. Louis, executive director of the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Registration for the seminar will begin at 2 p.m. with the first session on "Unaudited Financial Statements" to be held from 2:30— 3:45. Speakers will be Norman Spitzmiller and James R. Clay, both CPAs from Sikeston.

The second session from 4 to 5:15 will cover, "Financial Statements Adjusted for Price Level Changes." The topic will be discussed by two CPAs from St. Louis, John Huelster of Arthur Andersen and Co. and Geoffrey Gilbert of Ernst and Ernst.

Doctor Asks For Emphasis Concerning VD Symptoms

Dear Ann Landers: As a gynecologist and a member of the National Commission on V.D. I want to thank you for the good you have done through your column. Your recent advice on how to spot V.D. was excellent. If it is possible, will you please return to the subject and emphasize a few points which are not well known, even by many physicians:

In females, gonorrhea may be present without symptoms. It is a fact that the majority of females who have it harbor the infection for long periods of time. Patients frequently come to me because their boyfriends have told them they acquired the disease from them. Upon examination the women appear perfectly O.K. but I take a smear and the lab results indicate they do indeed have gonorrhea. All women who lead active sex lives should have lab smears. It is quick, simple, painless and inexpensive.

Although our hedonistic society has downgraded the old fashioned birth control control device the boys used to buy furtively in drugstores, it is still the best way to prevent V.D. as well as pregnancy. It might also be a factor in preventing cancer of the cervix.

Gonorrhea is the commonest cause for sterility in both male and female. It also may cause arthritis, skin eruptions, prostate trouble, kidney disease, heart disease and even death.--- Edwin Do Costa, M.D., Chicago

Dear Dr. De Costa: Thank you for providing my readers with what might be life-saving information. I appreciate your interest.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you still give advice or do you just tell people what they want to hear? I read with astonishment the letter from the country lady (pardon, woman) who was irritated by city people who were lost and blew their car horns until someone came out and gave them directions. I was even more astonished when you agreed with her that they were boors and clods. What ever became of the milk of human kindness?

I have lived in the country over 20 years on a little-traveled road. When a stranger stops to ask directions I am happy to help him. It is such a small thing to do, why would anyone resent it?

Please, Ann, don't encourage such lack of concern that we resent doing a small kindness. Does the Bible not say that in encountering strangers some have entertained angels unaware?--- Country Hick And Glad Of It.

Dear Glad: "Strangers" aren't what they used to be, plus the fact that folks who wander on to a farmer's property may well encounter something besides "angels." Read on:

Dear Ann Landers: One thing is for sure. You might be from Iowa, but you are a city girl through and through. Your reply to the farm woman who resented it when city people drove on to their property and honked the horn, for someone to come out and give them road directions was a dead give away.

I'm a farm person and I know that most farmers keep dogs on their place for protection. The dogs are not always visible, but they are on the look-out for strangers. If the farm family doesn't happen to be at home, your so-called "good manners" could result in disaster.--- Country Folk

Dear Folk: Thank you, Country Cousin, for the seasoned counsel. Your letter proves once again that common sense takes precedence over etiquette.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a LONG, self-addressed, stamped envelope, (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill., 60654.

Tour With Candidates

By MARY NOLEN

My first experience on the political campaign trail came Friday when I joined Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for governor, and Rep. Bill D. Burlison, running for his third term as 10th District Democratic Congressman, on a campaign tour of the Bootheel which better acquainted me with the issues facing Missourians.

The day began with a breakfast in Dowd's honor at Holiday Inn in Cape Girardeau attended by more than 200 supporters, including Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard and Scott County campaign chairman for Dowd.

Rep. Burlison began the speeches by talking of the failures of President Richard M. Nixon's term and emphasized that he should not be given another four years in the White House. He also said that unemployment has risen to six per cent since Nixon took office, and that it was only four per cent when he began.

Burlison also spoke on the publicized Republican bugging of the Democratic headquarters. "When the five were caught in the process of burglarizing the headquarters, two of them were members of the President's White House staff and one was chief security officer for the Committee to Re-elect the President," he said.

On the state level, he spoke of Republican gubernatorial candidate Christopher (Kit) Bond's failure to file a state income tax returns. "On the last two cars he bought, he has failed to pay Missouri sales tax on them," Burlison stated.

"When I was a lawyer beginning my practice, although I didn't make enough money to pay Missouri taxes, I still filed a tax return because I knew I was required to by law," he continued.

Burlison then introduced Dowd and gave a rundown on his qualifications.

"I want to make something clear ... I am and have always been against gun control," Dowd began. "I do quite a bit of hunting on my small cattle farm in Franklin county and enjoy this very much," he continued.

He also said that it doesn't matter how many laws are passed, if a criminal wants a gun he will get one even if he has to resort to violence, and that the average person is then left without any protection at all.

Dowd also spoke on how the courts need changing. "If a man commits a crime he should be taken to court within 90 days," Dowd said. Too often the trial is postponed time after time sometimes for almost two years before he is finally brought to trial.

"A strong emphasis on law should be taken against the person who sells drugs. Drug pushers should be tried quickly and given severe sentences," Dowd stated. "A person on heroin needs $80 to $100 a day to feed his habit and, since not many people have this kind of money, he often resorts to crime to help get it," he continued.

"I would like to establish facilities for methadone treatment. Methadone is given to narcotic addicts as a heroin substitute and would only cost the state 25 cents a day," Dowd added.

"Nothing makes a candidate feel any better than to be asked for his autograph," he said. One day after he had finished a speech to a college group, some teen-agers rushed to him asking for his autograph. After signing one young man's paper, he came walking back and said, "Hey, you're not Tom Eagleton."

Dowd then laughed and said, "No, I'm not."

After breakfast, I met Dowd and Burlison at the Cape Girardeau airport. Although I hadn't met any of them previously, Dowd, Burlison and Buehler came over at once, introduced themselves and made me feel welcome.

Althought I had never ridden in an airplane before, with the encouragement of Burlison and Jerry Estes, magistrate of Cape Girardeau County, I seemed to make it okay.

When we arrived in Dexter, we were taken to the Hickory Log Restaurant for an appreciation dinner in honor of Dowd and Burlison.

Burlison, speaking first again, said, "Bond swore under oath when taking a bar exam in 1964 that he was a resident of Atlanta, Ga., and we know of at least one other state where he did the same."

He also spoke on corruption in the Nixon administration and how money had been taken from the farmers in the wheat scandal.

Dowd followed Burlison's comments by stating,

"I have often been criticized for being an independent man, but I am my own man, and I am proud of it."

Dowd then said he is opposed to his opponent's suggestion that a sales tax be levied on gasoline to be used for rapid transit systems in the large cities, and that he was opposed to Bond's endorsement of gasolines tax diversions for construction and operation of rapid transit systems.

"I believe in rapid transit systems, but I believe that the cities should pay for the systems themselves," Dowd stated.

He also said he is committed to no increase in taxes and that his failure to endorse diversion of state gasoline tax funds to rapid transit systems in the cities had cost him the endorsement of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Dowd then discussed how he would like to attract more industry into rural areas so people would not have to travel 150 to 200 miles a day to work, which would help reduce heavy traffic in the cities.

After leaving Dexter, I asked Dowd about his favorite hobby. He laughed and said, "Oh, I'm a horseback riding and tennis man.

As soon as we reached Kennett, we were taken to the Dunklin County Democratic headquarters. Then we attended the Kennett High School homecoming parade and Dowd crowned the queen. Our next stop was at The Daily Dunklin Democrat, where we were met by the publisher, Jack Stapleton Jr.

Next we went to Malden and to a union hall where we were met by women who worked in a factory nearby. Rep. Burlison came back there later that night to attend an appreciation dinner given in his honor by the women.

After a few pictures and handshaking, we reboarded the plane to make our last stop in Poplar Bluff.

Upon our arrival in Poplar Bluff, we attended a meeting being held by a group of union women where Dowd and Burlison then gave brief speeches. We then went to the Democrat headquarters where we were met by a large crowd.

While Dowd and Burlison were talking to reporters and meeting the people, I interviewed Buehler. Before becoming campaign aide for Dowd, he was a teacher for three years. He and his wife, Jean have a 14-month-old son named Jason.

Since it was beginning to get late and we had been campaigning about 11 hours, I asked Buehler how he managed to withstand working such long days.

"Oh, I get tired all right, but I enjoy working with Mr. Dowd and I honestly think that we are going to win," he remarked.

Burlison and I left before Dowd and his campaign crew did because we were scheduled to ride the same plane back to Malden, where he was to speak.

The day had passed so quickly and I had enjoyed myself so much that I really hated to leave. I was really beginning to feel a part of the campaign crew, and it was a day I will not soon forget.

Alabama Battles To Second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alabama, runner-up at the end of the 1971 regular season, moved into second place once again today in The Associated Press college football ratings but well in arrears of front-running Southern California.

The top-ranked Trojans trimmed Washington 34-7 for their seventh consecutive victory and received 44 first-place votes and 986 of a possible 1,000 points—highest score of the season—from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama's come-from-behind 17-10 triumph over Tennessee earned the Crimson Tide two first-place votes and 805 points and moved them up from third place to second. Nebraska's defending two-time national champions blasted Kansas 56-0 for their third straight shutout and continued their climb, rising from fifth to third with two first-place ballots and 718 points.

Ohio State and Michigan remained in the fourth and fifth spots. The Buckeyes trounced ndiana 44-7 and received one first-place vote and 681 points while the Wolverines downed Illinois 31-7 and picked up the remaining No. 1 vote and 629 points.

Louisiana State rose from seventh to sixth with a 10-0 triumph over Kentucky. Colorado upset Oklahoma, last week's runner-up, 20-14 and went from ninth to seventh while dropping the Sooners from second to eighth.

Rounding out the Top Ten were UCLA, up from 11th to ninth after a 49-13 rout of California, and Texas, which climbed from 14th to 10th by trimming Arkansas 35-15.

Notre Dame and Tennessee fell out of the Top Ten, dropping from eighth and 10th, respectively, last week to 13th and 14th. The Fighting Irish bowed to Missouri 30-26 while Tennessee's late collapse against Alabama cost the Vols their spot among the elite.

The Second Ten consisted of Penn State, Auburn, Notre Dame, Tennessee, Iowa State, Arizona State and Florida State, with Arkansas, Southern Methodist and West Virginia all tied for 18th.

Last week's Second Ten was UCLA, Penn State, Stanford, Texas, Auburn, Air Force, Arkansas, Washington, Arizona State and Iowa State. Stanford lost to Oregon 15-13, Air Force was shot down by Navy 21-17 and Washington bowed to Southern Cal.

Shoulder Trouble

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals aid Monday wide receiver Mel Gray will be sidelined 4 to 6 weeks because of a dislocated left shoulder.

Gray was hurt Sunday in his first game of the season during the Cardinals loss to the New York Giants. He had just returned to action after a separated right shoulder which kept him off the bench for six weeks.

Basketball-Tips From The Globe Trotters

The Harlem Globetrotters, who bring their basketball magic to Sikeston High School field House on Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m., have released some "basketball tips" to fulfill thousands of requests from their fans.

GEESE AUSBIE ON SHOOTING

Shooting ability, like other fundamentals of basketball, is something that can be improved through practice. Let's start with your feet, which may sound funny, and end up with your eyes.

In shooting, keep your feet a comfortable distance apart, usually about the width of your shoulders is a good distance. Relax, and bend your knees slightly. The ball should be released off of the fingertips and don't forget to follow through. You should end up with the palm of the shooting hand facing the basket.

Now let's get to the eyes. Aim is very important in shooting. Concentrate on where you want to shoot, whether you intend to use the backboard or shoot for the rim. Generally speaking, angle shots should be banked off the board. Try and aim for the front part of the rim, and shoot a soft shot. Many times the ball will then go in off the rim.

When shooting the jump shot, remember that it is not important to get very far off the ground. It is far more important to be able to get off your shot quickly and accurately. Very few of your top basketball players actually jump that high, it is far more important to shoot quickly.

BOB (SHOWBOAT) HALL ON PASSING

Passing is a very important part of the game. Although the guy that makes the basket usually gets the headlines, if it weren't for someone passing him the ball, the basket couldn't be made. Good passing is important because it insures confidence and good team morale. Always try and keep the ball moving, keep it hot. Try and make your passes snappy and sharp, and try to avoid careless passing.

You will find that there is a pass for every situation. I even have a pass for when I am reaching for a glass of water on the bench! Seriously, the basic passes are the chest pass, the bounce pass and the baseball pass.

The two-hand chest pass is a short pass not exceeding over 15 feet. The hands are held on the side and the ball is released with a snap of the wrists.

The bounce pass is used to pass the ball when someone is closely guarding you. On the Globetrotters we use the bounce pass to get the ball to the pivot man, or we use it against a press. The ball should be snapped down, with the bound coming as close to the man you are passing to as possible.

The baseball pass is probably the hardest of all to complete accurately. It is used to trigger a fast break or to throw the length of the court. The ball is released like a catcher in baseball releases the ball, from behind the ear. This is in effective pass, but it takes a great deal of practice to do it well.

PABLO ROBERTSON'S DRIBBLING EXERCISES

In order to become a good dribbler, you must be ready to practice constantly. In dribbling, this practice can often become very boring. That is why I have devised two special exercises to help you become a better dribbler and have fun at the same time. Don't forget that just because you are working hard, you don't have to forget about having a little fun.

In the first exercise, line up eight to ten chairs in a straight line or row. Leave a few feet between the chairs and bouncing the ball slowly, weave in and out between the chairs. Start slowly and increase your pace as you go until you eventually are going as fast as you can.

In the second exercise, take the chairs and place them in a circle, about eight to ten feet across. Do the same things you did in the first exercise, except you will find it more difficult going in a circle then you did going in a straight line. Again, start out slowly and try and build up your pace until you can go between the chairs without hitting them or without losing control of the ball.

Keep working at dribbling, and try changing hands. After you master your right hand, work on your left. Soon you will be able to not only master change of hands, but also changes in the speed you are dribbling. Above all, don't forget to practice hard, but try and have fun at the same time.

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS bring their basketball show to the Sikeston High School field house, Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m. Among the stars will be these three big men -- Theodis Lee, Jerry Venable and Mel Davis. The Trotters made an appearance in Sikeston three years ago and return this season with the famed Marque Haynes as coach. The Lions Club is sponsor of the event and advance tickets may be purchased at any of the local banks.

Jackie Robinson Dead

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Jackie Robinson, a black infielder who wrote baseball history when he broke the major league's color barrier in 1947, died today, apparently of a heart attack.

The 53-year-old star of the former Brooklyn Dodgers was dead on arrival at Stamford Hospital after being stricken early this morning at his home here.

Robinson, who retired as a player in 1957, became the first black to play in the majors when he joined the National League Dodgers in 1947 and helped lead the club to the league championship.

Police said they received a call for Robinson's wife at 6:26 a.m. EDT, saying her husband was very ill. Officers went to the house and administered oxygen. He was taken by ambulance to the hospital, where he was dead on arrival.

Robinson's exploits at first base and at the plate the first year earned Rookie of the Year honors. Two years later, he led the league in batting with an average of .342 and was named the National League's most valuable player.

Robinson quit baseball in 1957 rather than go through with a trade to the New York Giants. He took a job as vice president of Chock Full O' Nuts, the coffee and restaurant organization.

During that time, he began devoting free time to the civil rights movement, touring the country on weekends to make speeches and raise funds for the NAACP. Since his retirement and in recent years, he had also become active in national Republican politics.

PINEHURST, N.C. — Fourtime Walker Cup player Bill Hyndman III of Huntington Valley, Pa., fired a two-under par 70 to lead first-day qualifiers in the North and South Men's Seniors Tournament.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have asked waivers on veteran infielders Bill Mazeroski and Jose Pagan.

Mazeroski already had announced his retirement and will take over as Pirate third base coach next season.

Pagan was placed on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release. If no club claims him, Pagan will be offered a minor league managing position in the Pirate farm system.

BARCELONA, Spain — Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 to win the singles title in the Spanish International Championship.

Tanner Top AL Manager

CHICAGO (AP) — Towards the end of the regular American League season, Billy Martin of the Detroit Tigers told Chuck Tanner of the Chicago White Sox: "It's got to be either you or me for Manager of the Year."

That was disclosed today by Tanner, who was named Monday the AL Manager of the Year in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters. The White Sox finished 5½ games behind the Oakland A's, newly crowned World champions, in the AL West race.

"If you win, I'll send you a congratulatory wire, and if I win, you can send me one," is the way Martin was quoted by Tanner.

It turned out Tanner received 213 votes to capture the coveted honor, while Eddie Kasko of the Boston Red Sox collected 140, and Martin was third with 66.

The poll, completed prior to the opening of the major league playoffs, ranked Dick Williams of the Oakland A's fifth with 24 votes, behind Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees, fourth with 38.

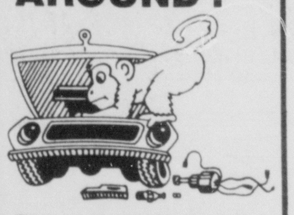

Tanner, in only his second full major league season, made a season-long run at the Oakland A's mainly with a threeman show—Dick Allen, Wilbur Wood and Carlos May.

The charismatic Tanner, once a journeyman big league outfielder, accepted the Manager of The Year honor with complete surprise.

"Is that right?" he kept repeating when informed of his selection. "What do you say? I'm very grateful and it's a big thrill to me. I have to credit the whole White Sox organization, from the scouts to the players who did the job.

Tanner joined the White Sox late in 1970, a season in which the club finished with a horrible 56-106 record and a major league low attendance of 495,355.

What's The Law

The Case Of The Sexy Sleeper

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Dr. Prude ran his dental office with the utmost propriety. In fact, he could not have been any more proper had he been raised by Little Orphan Annie. Consequently, when gorgeous-looking Irma slithered into his dental chair one day, he didn't bat an eyelash. He promptly put her under gas and prepared to extract a tooth.

Then it happened. While unconscious, and while Dr. Prude was fussing around in her mouth, Irma suddenly grabbed the hapless dentist by a very private part of his anatomy and doggedly refused to let go.

Struggling to preserve his virtue, the highly embarrassed dentist tugged and pulled frantically at his patient's hand to free himself from her vise- like grip. Unfortunately when he finally broke loose he also broke her index finger. And when Irma came out of her deep sleep and found that she could only point in right angles, she sued the perplexed dentist for having broken her finger.

"I didn't do it on purpose," protested the dentist in court. "I was only trying to defend myself. After all, I just couldn't stand there and let myself be sexually attacked."

"I didn't attack anybody," was Irma's answer. "I was sound asleep at the time. If a dentist is going to put a patient under gas, he should be prepared to deal with that person's subconscious."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the hapless dentist pay Irma for her broken finger.

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a dentist must take precautions to prevent injury to his patients as well as to himself. In this case, concluded the judge, had Dr. Prude used wrist straps or some other restraining device on Irma when putting her to sleep, the incident could have been avoided.

235-Pounder Dumped As Queen Hopeful

AKRON, Ohio (AP)— Stephen Simmons got bumped as a candidate for homecoming queen at the University of Akron but he may have won the day for university males.

The 235— pound sophomore claims he was ruled out of the running because contest rules call for queen entrants to be women.

No so, said the university's student supreme court after broad deliberation Monday.

The court said it was because the Norton, Ohio, queen aspirant didn't submit an application. Besides, said the Student Judiciary Committee of the Associated Student Government, Simmon's write- in votes were destroyed in accordance with past tradition.

The court did suggest that any reference to sex be cut from qualifications for future queen candidates and that all votes, write- in or printed, be counted.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Thus speaks the high and exalted one, whose name is holy, who lives for ever: I dwell in a high and holy place with him who is broken and humble in spirit. (Isaiah 57:15, NEB)

PRAYER: Lord, may we be so sensitive to Your spirit that we may understand Your message, and then obey Your will as shown in it. In Christ's name. Amen.

here, he said the loss of generating capability due to natural gas curtailment and the substitution of fuel oil during the peak load season this year amounted to about 533,000 kilowatts. He said this represented about 6 per cent of the system's generating capability.

Operating companies of the system are Louisiana Power and Light, Mississippi Power and Light, New Orleans Public Service Icn., Arkansas Power & Light and Arkansas-Missouri Power Co.

Conversion of the generating units to oil fuel will make them less efficient in the production of electricity, Lewis said. He said modifications cost about $20 per kilowatt and idle a plant for two to five months.

No Trace Of Boggs

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Search missions have found no trace of a light plane which disappeared more than a week ago, carrying House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three others.

A storm front which hampered air search operations Monday began to show signs of clearing Monday night, but for the eighth day a spokesman for the Rescue Coordination Center at nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base reported finding nothing.

The 17th Coast Guard District in Juneau reported early today it still has four aircraft participating in the search but that two of its four cutters were being withdrawn.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the ships had been through the same waters time and again without finding any trace of the missing plane.

Coast Guard planes in Juneau were grounded Monday by "high turbulence with a 500-foot ceiling," a spokesman said, and only about 15 of some 50 available planes took part in the search.

But Monday night the National Weather Service reported clearing from Anchorage to Cordova, about one-third of the 560-mile flight path to Juneau that the plane carrying the 58year-old Boggs planned to follow.

Also aboard the missing Cessna 310 were Rep. Nick Begich of Alaska, 40; Russell L. Brown, 37, a Begich aide, and Don E. Jonz, 38, president of Pan Alaska Airways and pilot of the plane.

Photographs of the primary search route, which has been covered one or more times in the week since the plane disappeared, have so far turned up nothing.

Air Force officials have refused to give up hope for the plane, pointing out that recoveries have been made after search planes have flown over an area six or seven times, only to spot airplanes on the next try.

of East Prairie, possible back injuries; and Linda Penrod, 11, of East Prairie, minor injuries. All were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred at 5:15 p.m. when the Groves auto at a high rate of speed came up behind the car driven by Edith Bailey who slowed to make a left turn. Groves struck the Bailey car in the rear and also struck a third car driven by Kenneth Barry Ivie in the side.

A car towing another auto overturned in a ditch and injured three persons in an accident at 12:45 p.m. on Highway 67 two miles south of Coldwater. A tire on the towed vehicle blew out causing the driver, Charles Stroud, 20, of Granite City, Ill., to lose control of his car.

Injured in the accident were Carrie Renee Stroud, two months, cut on forehead; Mark Green, 16, of Granite City, Ill., fractured left hand; and Arthur Dale Stroud, 14, of Granite City, Ill., head cuts and a possible concussion. They were taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown.

On Route K eight miles north of Doniphan at 8:30 a.m., a car driven by Hazel M. Stone, 41, of Doniphan ran off the road into a creek injuring a passenger, Edith Hopkins, 70, of Doniphan Route Two with a back injury.

The accident occurred when the Stone auto met another car on a one-lane bridge, applied brakes and ran into a creek filled with five feet of water.

Mrs. Hopkins was taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

At 8:25 a.m. on Highway 61 three miles north of Perryville, a tractor and an auto collided injuring Edward Gulley, 23, of Herron, Ill. He was taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville with head injuries. The car came up behind the tractor, was unable to pass due to oncoming traffic and struck the tractor in the rear.

Kissinger Reports On Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger reported to President Nixon and Secretary of State William Rogers today on his extensive talks with Nguyen Van Thieu, who at about the same time, was condemning the Communists' peace proposals.

The mid-morning session in Nixon's office was the President's second with the presidential advisor since his return late Monday from five days of talks in Saigon.

Just as the meeting began, word came from Saigon that Thieu had denounced the Communist proposals as "dark schemes aimed at taking over South Vietnam."

Kissinger, Nixon's chief national-security adviser, and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Creighton W. Abrams returned here on separate military flights Monday night from nearly a week of meetings with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

"We made some progress," Kissinger said on arriving in Washington. He met with Nixon for 30 minutes Monday night, the White House said.

Although the U.S. embassy in Saigon described the high-level meetings as having "made progress," there was no sign Kissinger convinced Thieu to agree to some form of coalition government with the Viet Cong.

Tin Song, a South Vietnamese newspaper that generally expresses Thieu's stands, said the talks with Kissinger were held in a "very heated atmosphere in the face of unyielding Vietnamt determination to stand pat on its position."

That position as expressed earlier by the official South Vietnamese radio is to "never accept a two-, three-or four-segment government."

With speculation continuing unabated that Kissinger and North Vietnamese officials earlier had reached agreements in principle on a cease-fire of some type involving total U.S. withdrawal and return of prisoners, the Saigon refusal to accede to a coalition appears the major obstacle.

Officials in Washington said the United States still holds out hope for some settlement—or at least a statement of principles—before the Nov. 7 presidential election.

10 Treated

Ten patients were treated Monday in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Donald B. Francis, 13, Sikeston, cut forearm while playing; Linda Penrod, 11, East Prairie, bruised face in car accident; Edith Bailey, 58, East Prairie, bruised left hip and right hand in car accident; Kathy Compos, 16, Mount Vernon, Ill., possible cerebral contusion in car accident.

Vernon Pritchett, 19, East Prairie, multiple bruises in car accident; Gena Rodgers, 18 months, Sikeston, cut nose and lip when bitten by dog; William Matlock, 35, Sikeston, scratched behind right ear when hit by piece of metal; Homer Evans Jr., 6, Canalou, cut knee in fall at school.

Wilma McCulley, 15, Morehouse, neck injury as result of car accident; and Dymisha Miller, 17, East Prairie, multiple scratches and bruises in car accident.
